GAME SYSTEM

SKILLS

This is your basic blocking attack that is suitable for basic attacks. Power moves and Boss attacks can make you drop your guard and even break right through your block. This move does offer you pretty good protection, but don't rely on it later in the game.

PERFECT GUARD

It will take a bit of practice to master this skill, but it is well worth the time. Once you have timing down, you can take on almost any foe without fear! Perfect Guard will let you safely block just about any attack in game. Furthermore, it will often stun your enemy, and give you a chance to counter attack. This is indispensable on Boss fights where their attacks are too strong to block and too numerous to continue to evade.

QUICK STEP

Along with the Perfect Guard skill, this is a staple move and is the key to your survival. This is not merely a quick dodge maneuver; you have to remember that you're invincible while performing this step. This move will allow you to pass through any attack -- beam weapons or other impending doom unharmed. As a simple rule of thumb: If you can't Perfect Guard against something, Quick Step through it.

DOUBLE STEP

Essentially a second Quick Step that is performed right after the first. This may make it seem like you can remain invincible for a long time, but it is often better to use a well-timed Quick Step rather than trying to perform the move over and over. This is a good way to reduce your odds of getting hit, when trying to escape or evade a large area attack.

SEE DAMAGE

This skill will give you an idea of how much damage you are doing to an enemy. This can be useful, especially when trying to figure out what will cause each enemy the most damage. Only Bosses have life bars, so this can also serve as a measure of how much life an enemy may have left.

SEE ENEMY NAMES

Pretty obvious what this does, but the importance is that knowing what you are fighting is half the battle. The enemy name will appear in the bottom right-hand side of the screen.

BESTIARY

More than a mere list of monsters, this tome has a collection of valuable data, such as what they are weak and tolerant to. It also details their item drops and what can be stolen. This info seems interesting at first, but when you are looking for a specific material to make a weapon, you will really appreciate this section. Check the back of the book for complete details on every monster in the game, including the Bosses.

WEAPON COMBINING

One of the coolest RPG aspects of the game, weapon combining allows you to make your own weapons and armor. There are about 40 different types of materials to experiment with, and you will be checking the combine menu a lot to see what can be created from the materials you find.

STEAL

You have to steal if you want to make some of the toughest and most interesting weapons and armor in the game. Lock on to an enemy, and when it turns purple, you will be able to steal from it. Sounds easy, but the actual time frame and circumstances that cause the lock to stay purple is unique to every enemy. It is extremely hard to ever get a purple lock on certain enemies, let alone steal from them. Needless to say, these enemies are usually the ones with the most valuable materials in their possession.

MAP CHECKER

It's about time a game let you "write" on an auto map. How games have we all played where you wanted to go back to an area and forgot where it is? This handy feature lets you mark up the map with colored X's. A simple innovation to be sure, but one that is long overdue and much appreciated.

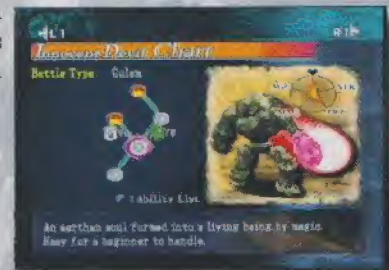

I.D. EVO CRYSTAL

Each color type of weapon will cause a corresponding color Evo Crystal to drop. When these are fed to any of your Innocent Devils, they'll evolve if they have met their requirements. This feature of feeding them can be toggled on and off, if you want to level up before having your I.D. move on to its next form.

Chart the progress and evolution of each of your Innocent Devils. This graph will display the current form and even paths of another I.D., if you forge it from a Devil Shard. The graph is important to monitor, since it shows what type of weapons leads to what branches based on the Evo Crystal it is fed. Check out the Innocent Devil section for complete details on their evolution and abilities.

TYPES OF ATTACKS

There are essentially two buttons to use to attack your target. The attack button initiates a regular series of attacks, and you can continue to press it to execute a standard combo. However, after any of the regular attacks, you can press the final attack button to activate a unique move. The type of attack will change depending on when in the string you press the final attack button. For example, the action performed will be different, if you press the final attack button after the first, second or third strike. Experiment with each weapon to learn its unique forms of attack. Here is a sample of the effects of pressing final attack after the indicated number of strikes:

WEAPON CATEGORIES

There are five types of weapons in the game, and each one has traits that are unique to its category. There is really no single type that is better than another, as they are designed to have a unique feel and style. It is completely up to personal preference when it comes down to which weapons to use. Still, each player will likely have a favorite based on his range, speed, style, etc. One other important factor is that each type has its own special series of final attacks.

SWORDS

Swords are fast and powerful, and they are probably the first choice, since they are so familiar in nature. The attacks and final attacks combos consist mostly of piercing moves and multiple spinning hits.

AXES

This category consist of slow, but powerful weapon. This is not for the quick cut 'em player, and is best suited for those players who want to swing less but do more damage. Several of the final attacks consist of a pop-up move or a great shattering smash.

SPEARS

These long weapons have incredible range, but do slightly less damage. They may seem weak at first, but the fact that you can cover so much area, makes up for it. The final attacks include a whirl wind, spinning attack and a lethal uppercut.

KNUCKLES

Likely to be undervalued by their relatively small size, Knuckle weapons are a blast to use. Since they're up-close melee weapons, they have very little range, but you can perform long combos. The final attacks possess the most variety in the game, including a rapid punch, a powered uppercut and a ground-level spinning "breakdance" move.

SPECIAL

These weapons are the toughest to make, and the most unorthodox. They include all sorts of projectiles, from a shuriken to a bomb and even a Gatling gun. They're mostly used for novelty, but are actually some of the best weapons in the game due to their ability to stagger enemies, thereby allowing you or your I.D. to attack over and over. The toughest part will be getting the materials to even get a chance to check out some of these cool toys.

CONDITIONS, WEAKNESS, & TOLERANCE

There are 11 different categories of damage types. Several of these types, such as Poison and Curse, have a lasting effect that requires an item for you to cure yourself. Also, Paralyze and Stone are affects that are temporary, but you must literally shake them off to help break their hold. The rest of the damage types are simply categories that lower your health.

Player	Enemy
LV 70	LV 70
HP 749/750	HP 749/750
ATK 036	ATK 036
DEF 100	DEF 100
STR 073	STR 073
CON 073	CON 073
LCK 073	LCK 073
EXP 774729	EXP 774729
Neat 1492	Neat 1492
Gold 12847	Gold 12847
Time 025:08:58	Time 025:08:58

Learning about these damage groups is very important for survival. When fighting enemies, it is important to remember that each type has its own weakness and tolerance. Knowing what type of attacks you will face can give you a huge advantage in a fight, due to the rings that can offer you resistance to those types of attacks. Likewise, if you know an enemy's weakness, you can exploit it to increase damage. Some of these are rather obvious by their attacks, but you can always refer to the bestiary to check for yourself. It is a pretty safe bet that an enemy is tolerant and weak to the opposite type of category, such as fire and ice, light and dark, etc. So if an enemy is shooting flames and at you, you can assume it is tolerant to fire and weak against ice.

INNOCENT DEVILS

There are six types of I.D.s to acquire in the game. All but one of them will join you when you enter the special rooms with green doors. The last I.D. is a special type that requires a very special weapon. Once you have these companions you can go to Julia's shop to store, remove and even raise new ones. There are a myriad of types and abilities for your Innocent Devils so be sure to check the next section for all the details. Throughout the game these companions will be your life saving friends. Often times, they will tip the balance of battle in your favor. Also and perhaps more importantly their abilities are the key access many "secret areas" that hold valuable items. Having the right I.D. with the correct ability is the key to completing the game 100 percent.

ABILITIES MENU FOR AN INNOCENT DEVIL

AN INNOCENT DEVIL USES AN ABILITY

THINGS TO KNOW

There are many unique aspects to this game but here are a few of the important things to keep in mind...

- The "candles" or large light sources in each room are a great way to stock up on items. If you smash them as you leave each room you should always be full of Serum, Uncurse, Potions and even High Potions. Note that High Potions won't appear in these breakable candles until the last two levels.

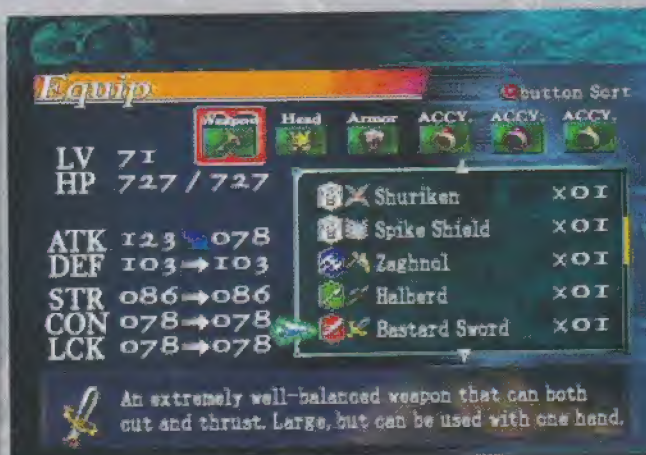

- The Save Rooms are obviously the point where you save your game, but you should briefly step into this room anytime you need to heal. These rooms will completely restore the life of your character and your Innocent Devils.

- Many rooms will lock you in and force you to defeat all the monsters before the red bars will drop. However, keep in mind that, for the most part, once the gates are dropped you can return to this area without having to fight the monsters again. This is important because you can defeat your foes to unlock the gate and go to a save room to heal without having to defeat the enemies again.

- Use the right gear for the right job. In other words, equip the right type of protection for the types of monsters you are fighting, as well as weapons that make it easy to battle specific types of monsters. For example, spears are great to take out crowded rooms but a heavy axe type weapon may not be the best choice to jump up to combat a Harpy. It is very easy to forget to optimize your gear, but always try to use the equipment that offers you the most protection and best tactical advantage.

JULIA'S SHOP

After making her acquaintance, you will be able to buy and sell items, as well as store and retrieve Innocent Devils. You can use a Magic Ticket to warp to her shop any time. If you smash all the "candles" you shouldn't need to buy much, but the option is always open. A great safety precaution is the Death Doll: when it is equipped, it will "die" instead of you. This is very costly but it will save your life, just one time.

INNOCENT DEVILS

There are six types of I.D.s to acquire in the game. Each of these will automatically join you when you enter the special rooms with green doors. However, the last "secret" Innocent Devil, Pumpkin, requires a very special weapon to awaken it. Once you have these companions you can go to Julia's Shop to store, remove and even raise new ones. Throughout the game these companions will be your life-saving friends. Often times, they will tip the balance of battle in your favor. Additionally, and perhaps more importantly, their abilities are the key to access many "secret areas" that hold valuable items. Having the correct I.D. with a certain skill the key to finishing the game 100%. Still, these abilities are more than just a means to find items. Their skills are essential for survival!

CONTROLLING I.D.S

There are three modes that you can place the I.D. into, Auto, Command and Guard. For most situations it's okay to leave the I.D. on Auto and let it decide what abilities to use. This mode is a great help for easy fights where there is no need to micromanage your buddy. In tough situations you will want to issue commands directly to your I.D. Several examples include commanding a Fairy type to heal you quickly or having an I.D. cast a specific spell when it is desperately needed. Taking direct control of the Innocent Devils' abilities can save your hide. In some cases it is better to use up their heart bar doing damage than to let them fight it out on their own. The last mode is a Guard Stance in which the I.D. will block. It cannot block forever, but it can certainly serve as a great distraction to enemies!

GROWTH AND LEVELING UP

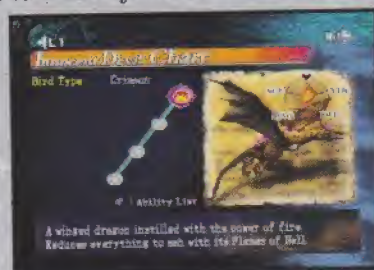

Your Innocent Devils level up the same way you do. When you battle together both of you will receive experience. Each time they reach a certain EXP total they will go up in level. The interesting factor is that each I.D. gains attributes at different rates. Check out the charts for each type to see how each I.D. raises its attributes per each level it gains.

EVOLUTION

As you fight enemies with your I.D. you will see Evo Crystal fall from enemies. The color of the crystal corresponds to the color of each weapon. For example, a sword will cause red crystals to drop. When you check out an I.D. on its chart page you will see the possible ways to evolve it. Some Innocent Devils have special requirements beyond the Evo crystal value (see each I.D.), but for the most part you simply need to collect the number of crystals mentioned. Note that once you do evolve all crystals on that path will be reset! You can also toggle off the ability of your I.D. to eat these crystals if you wish to level it up before it evolves. Ultimately you will want to evolve your I.D.s into the final form that offers you the best set of abilities that you seek.

ABILITIES

This is the most crucial factor of your Innocent Devils. Their abilities will let you access many areas of the game as well as give you an arsenal of great new attacks and support functionality. Be sure to check out each the abilities on the following pages and then set your sites on evolving your I.D. to gain this great move.

PLAYER ENHANCEMENTS

Not only are the I.D.s a great companion to help you battle beasts, but each one also offers you a stat-boost. This may seem like a small thing at first, but once they level up the increases to your attributes that they offer can be very substantial.

Below is a chart that details the enhancements the various I.D.s initially offer, and then after they begin to level up. For example a Lv 59 Iytei Battle Type will give you a strength boost of $10 + (40 \times (59 - 1) / 98) = 33 + \text{STR}$

$$\text{TOTAL STAT ENHANCEMENT} = \text{INITIAL STATE} + (\text{GROWTH RATE} \times (\text{LEVEL} - 1) / 98)$$

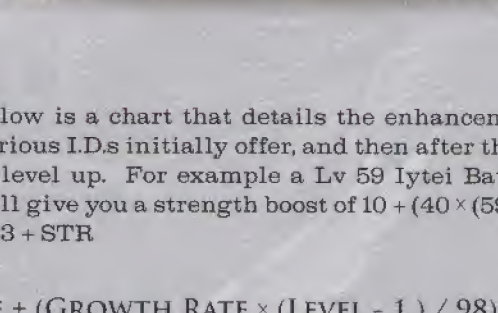

TYPE	STATES	+STR	+CON	+LCK
BATTLE	INITIAL STATE	10
	GROWTH RATE	+40
BIRD	INITIAL STATE		4
	GROWTH RATE		+12
FAIRY	INITIAL STATE			1
	GROWTH RATE			+14
MAGIC	INITIAL STATE	5	2
	GROWTH RATE	+20	+6
DEVIL	INITIAL STATE	4	2	1
	GROWTH RATE	+14	+4	+5
PUMPKIN	INITIAL STATE	10	4	5
	GROWTH RATE	+60	+18	+50

LIFE AND DEATH

Just like you, an I.D can "die" if it completely exhausts its heart bar. Unfortunately, an I.D. uses the heart bar for its life and abilities, so there is always a trade off on how much you want to drain an I.D.'s life by using up its abilities. If an I.D. does use up all of its life it will enter a ghost-like state where it is unable to have any physical effect. In order to bring it back to this plane of existence you will need refill its heart by 1/4 of its max. You can refill its life bar obviously by collecting hearts, as well as by performing a Perfect Guard.

DEVIL SHARDS

These small egg-like shards are your means to forging more Innocent Devils. After about 20 minutes of continual use an I.D. may drop a shard for you. The really incredible thing about Devil Shards is not only that you can go to Julia's shop and forge a new I.D., but it will get a 10% bonus of the stats of its parent!

HOW TO USE THIS SECTION

The monster enclosures that follow are composed of some intense data that presents the abilities of each Innocent Devil. Here is a breakdown of each category:

ABOUT I.D. ABILITIES

ABILITY : The name of the ability.

CLASS: Category that determines how the ability is triggered.

A: Activated by pressing a button.

B: Begins automatically (I.D. uses move on its own).

LEARNING REQ. : Learning Requirement. How each ability is learned.

Moves marked "0" are learned from the beginning.

Moves marked with a number are learned by defeating a certain number of enemies based on a "Beat EXP" formula.

$$\text{BEAT EXP} = (1 + (\text{ENEMY'S LEVEL} + 5) / 10)$$

This is a rather complex equation but the important thing to know is that it is the amount of enemies based on their level!

Moves with an * (asterisk) have a special condition that must be met.

ATK. PWR. : Attack Power. This is the attack power of each ability or any special effect it has. The number is calculated off of a multiplier based on the I.D.'s Magic or Attack stat.

$$\text{ATK. PWR.} = \text{NUMBER} \times \text{ATK. [BASED ON ATK ATTRIBUTE]}$$

EFFECT : This field displays the various attributes of the respective ability.

G: Indicates Guard (Blocking).

Big, Mid, Small: Types of Attacks.

Stun, Freeze, Poison, Sleep: Status abnormalities placed on enemies.

BATTLE TYPE

The muscle of the group, this will be your "tank". It can take and dish out a lot of damage and it's only braw back is that it is ground based so it has a tough time with ariel foes. Also, since it a ground dweller it is very susceptible to power attacks and huge beam weapons. Still, this I.D type will have the most hit points and when it comes to dealing out raw damage, none can match it. Use this heavy hitter to go toe to toe with almost any melee foe and you will come out on top.

BIRD TYPE

The Bird Types all have the innate ability Glide and it can be upgrade to Long Glide. This is a crucial skill to reach some tricky parts of the game. It is not a physically strong I.D. but it's flying ability and good agility make it great and hit and run attacks.

Also, it has many air borne abilities that can rain damage on multiple foes. They are well rounded fliers and their speed makes them idea for taking on most cumbersome opponents.

FAIRY TYPE

This type is not intended for battle, rather it is a support character. The Fairy Type are proficient healers and some of the evolved forms can even cure status ailments such as poison, curse and stone. Just because they don't fight well, don't ignore them! They are your primary source of healing. If you run out of Potions or items. The best use for them is when you are fighting easier enemies where you don't need any assistance. This will give the Fairy time to heal you while you can feed it hearts from simple foes.

MAGE TYPE

The only true magic-user of the Innocent Devils, these I.D.s have the greatest variety of magical attacks and defense. Their diverse powers cover a wide range - from defensive magic like shields to just about all types of attack magic such as Light.

Fire, Ice, etc. Their weakness, like all mages, is that they are physically weaker than some of their brethren. While they cannot take a lot of damage they can sure dish it out. Check out an enemy's weakness - the Mage Types surely will have a way to exploit it.

DEVIL TYPE

Devil I.D.s don't have nearly the variety of the other types. They can only evolve twice, but that is enough. These are pure and simple killing machines. They do have the much-needed Magic Circle ability as well as a few other "circle attacks". However, their strength lies in their high defense, attack, and agility. This is one of the only Innocent Devils where you may never want to use their abilities in combat since they are such proficient fighters on their own. Note that after their first evolution you must use the Chauve-souris to evolve them.

PUMPKIN TYPE

This is the only Innocent Devil that will not automatically join your group. You must create the Pumpkin Mace and wake this I.D. with a good whack on the head. The Pumpkin I.D.s are the comic relief of the group, in that they have a lot of personality. Unfortunately, with all the style they are given only one ability, Pose.

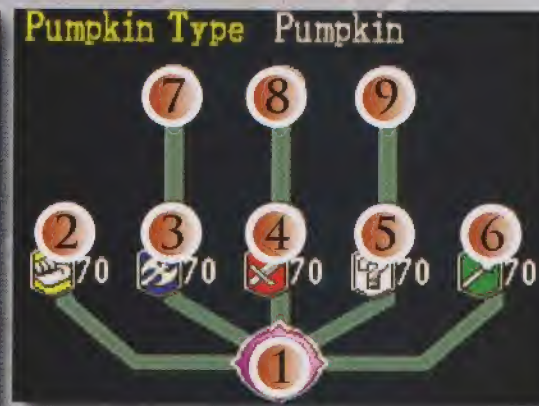

Each of their advanced forms requires a special weapon to evolve them, so it will be quite a task to see all of the Pumpkin Type iterations. Still, they offer you great stat boosts, and are generally a blast to have along as you trek through those long hallways.

Before your adventure begins, turn around and head away from the Castle, following the path outside. At the end of circular clearing, you will find a Potion.

Retrace your steps, and enter the Castle for your fight battle against an Executioner. Simply run around this hulking figure, and cut it down to size. The barriers will drop, and you will acquire the Memorial Ticket. Use the Save Room in front of you, and proceed to the east end of the Castle. Dispatch a trio of Skeletons, and exit through the double doors. In the following room, a large group of Skeletons will swarm you. Keep them in front of you, and dispatch them one at a time. They are pretty weak, so you should have no trouble with these undead. The prize in the center of the room is the Quick Step Skill, which will allow you to evade attacks.

Head upstairs to 2F, which will take you outside to the outer wall. On these ledges, several Fenrir will pounce out of the ground - so attack them quickly to knock them down, and be sure to finish them by striking before they can get back up.

Walk along the perimeter through the next couple of rooms, and destroy another trio of Skeletons. To the left is a Save Room that you may want to use. Continue forward to a round section that contains the Abandoned Castle Map. With this in your possession, you can now see most of the Castle and all of its floors.

Follow the outer ledge to the next circular area, and enter the door. Inside this room are a Cyclops and several Skeletons. The big guy has a huge club that gives it great range. Attack it from the back, and use the Quick Step to dodge its arching attack. If you are taking a lot of hits from the Skeletons, move out of range of the Cyclops and reduce their number first.

When the battle is won, go through the green doors to obtain your first Innocent Devil. In this room you will gain the aid of the Infant Fairy.

Walk down the stairs into a flooded room. Two Mermen will jump you when you enter their watery home. Take the staircase leading up, and grab the Potion in the hallway. The doors at the end of the room are sealed, and you will need to press the action button to use the Dragon Crest to open them.

Once you gain access to this room, a slew of Skeletons and an Executioner will bar your way. Attack the Executioner while continuing to strafe around it, and Quick Step to avoid his large hammer. When all the enemies are defeated, collect the Bestiary Skill. You will now be able to access important data about each of the monsters you fight. Enter the dark tunnel leading down to the basement.

ABANDONED CASTLE B1F

Several sword-toting Ghosts will greet you, but they are no match for a Devil Forger. A few quick slashes and they will be nothing but vapor. Exit through the patterned doors, and descend the long ramp, vanquishing several Skeletons. At the bottom of this slope is a Save Room next to the entrance of the next area. This next section has a branch that extends to the west (area 1). However, continue running straight down, defeating several Fenrirs in the next two sections, to reach area 2.

At the bottom of this long slope the exit in front of you will be blocked. Slay all three Ghosts to lower the bars, but take the path to the right, that leads south, to finish this part of the map. This time around you will be going uphill fighting more familiar canines. The path will curve to the left, and the next room will combine Skeletons and Fenrir. Focus on the canines first, and eliminate the Skeletons when they get close. About half way up this path is a set of doors on the right. Enter this room and smash all the wine barrels. Not only will you collect a wine bottle, but the next room holds a Potion and a locked chest with Aluminum.

Go back out the way you came, and continue north (right) to arrive back at area 1. Head all the way back down where you fought the Ghosts and enter the next room to the east. A short ways up, there will be a door on the right side. Enter this room full of Ghosts and Fenrir. Try to take out the dogs first, since they are faster and provide the greatest threat. If you get surrounded, Quick Step out of the way to give yourself some room. In the center of the room is a bag of $100. Grab the cash and continue on your way.

The next room you enter appears to be a dead end; a ? icon will appear. Grab the Weapons Combining Skill.

A FLOATING SPIRIT ABLE TO PASS THROUGH WALLS. KEEPS ETERNAL WATCH. CARRYING A KNIFE AND LANTERN.

This is a very important skill that will allow you to create new weapons and armor. If you have been picking up the materials as you've defeated enemies, you should be able to make soft leather armor, leather helm and several weapons. Be sure to always check for new combinations to upgrade your gear. Next to this skill is a pillar that has particles falling from it. Repeatedly attack this pillar to collapse a section of the ceiling, making a handy ramp.

Race up this ramp to find a chest with the 1D Evolution Crystal Skill. This will allow you to collect crystals to evolve your Innocent Devils into new creatures with new moves.

The next large room contains several Zombies. They are somewhat slow moving, but they are rather resilient for undead monsters. Their primary attacks are swinging strikes, and a grab move that can drain your life pretty well. Keep them just in range, and unleash a combo to take send them back to the grave. The connecting hallway is barren, so continue to the next room to battle several more Zombies and Skeletons. Attack the Zombies first, and pursue them until they are finished before fighting the Skeletons. When you enter the following room, you will encounter several Wizards.

These spell casters can shoot fireballs, and will try to keep their distance. Close in on them to prevent them from having time to use their magic.

The final room on this floor is filled with Skeletons and Zombies. You must defeat them all to lower the gates. A simple approach is to lock on to an enemy and keep attacking in that direction. Just keep using fast combos and crush anything in your path. When the room is clear, run up the staircase to the first floor.

They have long blade arms, and they move and hop very quickly. Give yourself some room from them while fighting the Zombies or take them out first, to avoid their quick sporadic strikes.

Lock on to this Boss, and continue to attack until it swings at you. Perform a Quick Step to avoid the strike, and continue your assault. Keep the pressure on the Boss with rapid attacks only pausing to dodge its huge weapons.

Another technique you can try is to jump to avoid its attack, and execute an air combo on the way down. Try to stay toward its back as much as possible to avoid an obvious frontal assault.

If this battle seems a little easy, that's because this is only the first form of the Boss. Once its life bar is gone, it will reform, and you must defeat its second form. Its right arm will rain down a shower of flames that covers a lot of ground. You can avoid it by staying far away, but if you want to drop this foe, you will need to get in close. Stay behind it, and continually attack it, letting your Fairy I.D. heal you as you dish out damage.

It can also launch fireballs at you even at close range. Dodge these with the Quick Step and continue your assault. You can try a hit-and-run approach, waiting for its flame attacks to subside, but this is a battle of attrition that you can win. Although this may seem less strategic and more like brute force, it is the easiest and fastest way to defeat this Boss.

When the Boss is gone, step into the blue light to replenish your health and heart meters. Approach the large birdcage and press the action button to go to the Baljhet Mountains.

This will be your "tank" character that can dish out and take a lot of physical damage. In addition, these stout I.D.s have a guard ability that can block enemy attacks as well as protect you if you are in their Guard Field.

When you exit with your new pal, several Fenrirs will pounce. They will be no match for the tag team of you and your Battle I.D., so finish them quickly and continue through the archway. Head south, defeating the Lizardmen along the way and enter the doorway at the end of the path.

The next area is filled with low level Skeletons and more Fenrirs. While they may outnumber you, they are certainly not your equals in strength. There is a fork in the path that leads to your right (1), but continue down this trail to the south, clearing out the monsters and completing this section of the map.

Turn right into the next area, and you will encounter several Orcs and Skeletons. The Orcs are essentially archers that shoot fire arrows at you from afar. Close in on the Orcs using Quick Steps to avoid their shots and take out this long-range threat first.

This section splits off in two directions (2), but until you defeat all the monsters, the red gates will not budge. Take the path leading southwest, and defeat the Fenrirs in the next area, as you begin moving north. In the next area, several Zombies will halt your progress as an Orc tries to fire at you from afar. Be sure to stop the Orc first to avoid taking an arrow in the back as you eliminate the Zombies.

This area has three exits (3), and for now, take the first path sloping down to the right. This path will lead back to area 2, and will complete the lower right-hand section of this mountain. Remember that you only need to go far enough into the area to highlight the whole section on your auto map. Once this section is completed, backtrack to the previous area (3), and take the middle exit.

You will find a lot more Skeletons lurking about, but more importantly, on a ledge to the left is a Serum. On a higher ledge, you will get a view of a chest that will tempt you. You cannot reach this without the Glide ability, so note this spot for later use and drop back down.

After battling a few Skeletons, the exit will be barred, and you must take down a Cyclops. Avoid the large club it spins on the ground, and tag team this big beast with your Battle I.D. When it is gone, enter the room behind it, and you will receive the Perfect Guard Skill. This ability will let you "deflect" an attack, if you press block with the correct timing (just before an attack would hit you).

CENTRAL REGION

To the west is a Warp Room, but this place will not become active until you reach the next one. To the south is a heavy iron door that cannot be opened until your Battle I.D. learns the Brute Force ability. Go north to the next area, and use the Save Room on the right. On the opposite side is Julia's shop. After making her acquaintance, you will be able to buy and sell items, as well as store and retrieve Innocent Devils. You probably won't have enough money to buy much, but make Backtrack to area 3, and take the last exit in this section. Your path will diverge once again (4), but continue heading north to the very first fork in the road that you encountered at area 1. These next couple of areas will pit you against a group of Zombies, Skeletons and Orcs. Try out the Perfect Guard skill on the Skeletons to master its timing. If done correctly, a white glow will appear, and the enemy will be dazed momentarily.

When you reach area 1, this entire segment of your auto map will be completed. Journey back to area 4, and head west to the Central Region. As you enter this area, a cinema will introduce a beautiful and strangely familiar character...

When you head north to the next doorway you will find a very important pick up. Just to the right of this exit is the Steal Skill. As its name suggests it will allow you to steal items from enemies when the lock-on cursor turns purple. This is a very important feature of the game that will allow you to acquire numerous materials and create loads of weapons and armor. Always attempt to steal from an enemy before destroying it. Try out your new skill on the Armor Knights and Wizards in the next area to collect several Magical and Memorial Tickets respectively. Ascend the large staircases to reach the top of this plateau.

Upon entering the next area you will notice a cannon off in the distance, as you run towards it you will notice a cursor will appear on the ground as a Skeleton that operates this big gun tries to lock in on your position.

Continue running in a zigzagging fashion to avoid being an easy target and Quick Step out of the way if the cursor is underneath you when it turns pink. You need to take over that cannon in order to clear out this area. Jump up to the Gunnery seat and get rid of the Skeleton using your new toy. Once you take a seat your view will switch to first person. The primary threats you must deal with are the two other cannons on the castle wall.

Target them and continue firing at them, one at a time, until they are destroyed.

Many Orcs remain in the vicinity use the large weapons to shoot them and then focus your firepower on the barricade on the bridge. It will take several shots to crumble this fortified blockade so be patient. When it has finally fallen turn your weapon on the remaining enemies on the bridge. This shooting mode is great fun but when you run out of targets cross the bridge and exit through the wooden door.

More Orcs and Armor Knights await you in the large open courtyard. The exit will be barred until you defeat them so be sure to take out the Orcs first and then clean up the Armor Knights. The road will slope upwards but before you proceed to the archway at the end, use the Save Room on the right. Race up the incline and defeat the Orcs and Skeleton Blaze. Note that if you steal from this Skeleton you will receive a life-giving Potion.

The next long inclining segment contains more Skeleton Blazes but a lot more Orc archers are guarding the exit. Let your Battle I.D. take out the Skeleton while you dispatch the Orcs.

You will find another detour on your path (5) that leads to the North. Unfortunately at the very end you will be unable to defeat the final enemy at this point in the game. If you are curious, you can fight through the Cyclops and Skeletons Blazes to follow the U shaped road. At the end of this path you will encounter a strange enemy that will reform after you "destroy" it. The Blood Skeletons cannot be destroyed by conventional means and you must return here later to access the room that they are guarding.

Ascend the long set of stairs to the exit and continue fighting Skeletons to level up you Battle I.D. Head south back to area 6 to complete this section and gain valuable experience. Before you can continue north you must defeat two Efreets. These fiery foes are masters of flame so it's a good thing you got that Boiling Ring. Use the Quick Step to avoid their long swipes and flame thrower attacks. Try to assault them from the rear and use your Battle I.D. as a diversion.

When the barrier drops, go through the door and use the Save Room on the left side. You will need to defeat one more Efreet and a few Lizardmen as you battle to the end of the road, the red Boss door.

Make sure you have the Boiling Ring equipped or this fight will be a lot more difficult. The Boss has several attacks from the ground as well as an air strike. While you are up close there are several attacks that you have to be careful of. It's fastest strike its bite move that gives very little warning. Block or Quick Step this maneuver to avoid damage from this chomping move.

On the contrary, its tail whipping attack is telegraphed rather well. Right before the tail hits you, simply Quick Step to escape unharmed.

The last initial attack in this part of the fight is a stomp move that could be confused for the Wyvern taking flight. You can jump straight up and time your leap to perform an air combo while it lands.

When the monster is in front of you, continue your assault on its head and wait for it to rear back and plunge its head straight into the ground. It will temporarily become stuck in the ground and this is perfect time to use your Battle I.D. to tag team the beast while it is defenseless.

However, once the monster has escaped be sure to send your I.D. back or put it in the Guard stance to avoid taking lots of damage from the previously mentioned attacks. When the beast has received enough damage, it will take to the sky and shoot a large stream of flames in a straight line. This is very easy to avoid and it is a great time to use the Fairy I.D. to heal you.

Its final and most devastating attack will occur after the fight has gone on for a while. In a fit of rage the Wyvern will rear back on its hindquarters and shoot a continual torrent of flame as it moves its head from side to side. Thankfully, the Quick Step skill will allow you to pass through the flames unharmed. As the fire approaches you, simply Quick Step through the blaze in the opposite direction. Be sure your Innocent Devils don't get caught in the blast!

If you relentlessly attack its head and Quick Step through its attacks you should survive this fiery fight. Recharge in the blue light and exit this room to travel to the Garibaldi Temple.

Fight your way past numerous Skeletons and Orcs, as you descend a long staircase. Eventually you will enter a large open area with a big Tower in the center. Several Orcs and an Efreit will bombard you with fire attacks. Get up close and personal to remove the anchors before dealing with the fire elemental. When the enemies are gone, head out the western exit.

ST. GERMAIN

As you approach the Temple, you will run into a strange fellow who seems to know far too much. Saint Germain asks you to refrain from pursuing Isaac to maintain the greater good. This will make sense later in the game, but for now, you have your reasons to be very suspicious of this character. To prove his intentions, he will reveal a very personal part of your past. CENTRAL TEMPLE

As soon you step inside, Bone Soldiers and a Cyclops ambush you. These skeletal fighters have long swords and are a lot more dangerous than their predecessors. Let your Battle I.D. fight the Cyclops while you eliminate the undead.

Continue to the end of the hallway, but you will need to head back to the area 1 exit through one of the two adjacent doors. Use the door to the south and prepare to be swarmed by a group of agile and annoying Flea Men. These are quick little buggers that rely on their numbers to cause you grief. Swat them like insects, and move south at area 2. A group of Ghosts will attack you in the area, but they are not lethal enough to be a big threat. Follow the hallway, and enter the doorway on your left. In the center of the room is a Memorial Ticket, but you must contend with a lot of Flea Men and Ghosts. Simply attack the closest enemy to you, and if the Flea Men start to overwhelm you, block and counter their attack to eliminate them.

Go back out into the hallway, and follow it to the dead end around the corner. Amidst a half dozen Ghosts, you will find an Uncurse potion. Backtrack to area 2, and go left to explore the western part of this central area.

After a short walk, there will be a doorway on your right. Enter this room that is filled with Armor Knights, and defeat them to grab a Potion.

Follow this hallway up to area 4 that is essentially a four-way intersection. If you are low on health, use the Save Room to the west, otherwise continue heading north to investigate the rest of this central region.

This next hallway is loaded with Flea Men. Crush these pests, or simply make a dash to the right, and enter the first doorway on the right side. An Armor Knight will join more Flea Men. The fast little guys are too quick to concentrate on with the large knight present. Remove the metal man first, block and counter, and then deal with the quick and pesky Flea Men. When they are gone, be sure to grab the Garibaldi Temple Map and head back out into the hallway continuing east to area 3.

Travel down the length of the hallway to area 3, and curve around the corner toward area 1 to complete this section. Backtrack a few paces to area 3, and head right (north) to a new section. After you contend with several more Flea Men, enter the next corridor, and enter the doorway on the right. There are a lot more Armor Knights and Flea Men than you've had to deal with all in one place. Concentrate on fighting the Armor Knights, and your combos will hit many of the Flea Men as well. The prize in this room is the last ability you will get, the Marker Mode Skill. It will allow you to mark up your auto map to remind yourself of key locations.

Circle back to area 4 and go east to explore the second floor of the Temple.

WESTERN TEMPLE

Now it's time to tackle the bottom part of the sections you just conquered above. Turn left to head south. Defeat the two Dead Fencers in the hallway, and clear out the open area that is infested with Flea Men. The next open area to the west is filled with Fenrir. Defeat the hapless hounds, and enter the doorway on the left. This room contains several Armor Knights and a Dead Baron. Block the Baron's quick attacks and counter with your own. Once it is gone, finish the large knights. Note that in the back of the room, there is a crushed section of the wall. Return to this spot when you obtain the Magic Circle ability to slide under this spot.

Complete the rest of this upper squared section by fighting the same enemies in the rooms below. Once this entire area has been covered go out the upped door to the west. (OVER)

This hallway will introduce the Blaze Master. It is an advanced form of undead that has dual blades and exploding mines. Launch a full combo on this monster, before it has a chance to do the same to you...!

Enter the first door you encounter on the left to face a group of Blaze Masters and Fenrirs.

Fight the canines first, and tag team the Blaze Masters with your Battle I.D. However, when they are destroyed, the fight is not over, as several Dead Barons will join the battle. Use the Quick Step to avoid their fast attacks, and pin them down with combos. Your reward for surviving this tough battle will be the Ceremonial Tool that is in a chest at the rear of the room.

The next few hallways are filled with Blaze Masters and Wizards. Even though the undead are a bigger threat, take out the Wizards first to put an end to their spell casting, before tackling the Blaze Master. Use the Save Room on the left, if you need to, and follow the hallway until it splits at area 5. At this split, you will have to face several Wizards and a Lesser Demon. The demon is an aerial opponent that swoops in to attack you. Jump up to and perform an air combo, or let it dive at you while you block and counter its attack.

Run around this looping area, fighting the Wizards and Lesser Demons to gain valuable experience and materials. When you have completed this area, preceded out the door to the east.

These next several adjoining corridors will introduce you to the Phantom Sword and Spectral Sword. These ethereal fighters fade in and out and brandish a huge sword. Even though they appear translucent, they can take a lot of damage. Also, they will not only swing their large weapon at you, they will toss it as well. Finally, they have a magic attack that creates a large beam that emanates from a circle they create in front of them. Dodge to the side to avoid their linear attack and let them have it.

A bit of mistaken identity forces you to fight the master vampire slayer. This is not a fight you can win, literally. You must only survive and deplete his health about a quarter of the way, and the fight will end. He has several attacks at his disposal, but the important thing to remember is that you can Perfect Guard or Quick Step all of them.

One of the trickiest attacks to avoid is the flaming vial he tosses at you as he yells, "Incinerate!" This blue flame arcs around you, and it can be tricky to decide which way to dodge.

He also has a red flaming attack where he will crouch and charge up a fire dash move. This can be very hard to guard against, so rely on the Quick Step to pass through his charge and attack before he regains his composure.

One of best times to launch your offensive is after you Perfect Guard his green whipping attack. His whip is very quick but the timing is predictable, and once you master it, you can block and counter him every time.

His final attack that you must contend with is a series of physical strikes ending in a multi kick combo. These strikes can also be Perfect Guarded and countered. However, if you are having trouble getting the timing down, dodge to the side and wait for his combo to be completed before you retaliate.

When the battle has ended, leave this area, and enter the next room on your right. In here your Battle I.D. will learn the Brute Force Ability. This is not simply an attack move. This ability can be used to lift heavy objects as well. Go back into the hallway, and collect the Magical Ticket. The huge iron door at the end of this short hallway will require your new ability. Stand in front of the heavy door, and select the Brute Force Ability with the D-pad. Activate this ability to raise the door and walk into the next area.

The yellow door on the right is a Warp Room, but there is still a bit more to explore. Continue further down the hallway, and enter the first door on the left. A tall reptilian monster will attack you with a long, glowing weapon. The Slogra has great range due to its size and its long staff-like weapon. Furthermore, the Slogra is quite fond of charging at you, and it can hit you while it is out of range. Get in close and combo like crazy. When the gates are lifted, take the stairs down to the basement.

TEMPLE BASEMENT

This is a very tough route to take, so make sure you have plenty of Potions before you attempt to claim the prize at the end. In the dark and earthy depths are a ton of Skeletons, Wizards, Slogra and Thieves. The Thief is not a tough enemy to deal with, and it is rather weak. However, as its name suggests, it is fond of taking your items. To recover your stolen goods, simply kill the pickpocket.

At the bottom of this sloping trail, you will have to fight several Wizards and Slogra to unbar the exit. Stop the Wizards from aiding the large reptiles and clean up the rest of the monsters.

The next section has airborne enemies, including Lesser Demons and Ectoplasm. These spheres are not a threat in terms of the damage they cause, but when they turn purple, they can curse you. If this occurs, you will not be able to fight. Use an Uncurse potion, if you have one, or simply run away until the effect wears off.

The last leg of this journey is filled with Lesser Demons and more Slogra. This is a tough battle, since you are getting attacked from above and from afar. Don't run down the path to draw too many enemies on your trail! Take out the first few you encounter, then try to trick the other foes, one at a time, into following you into an open spot. The goal is to separate the monsters, and take them out one at a time. At the end of this tough series of battles is a room that contains the great Sixth Sense Brooch. With this brooch equipped, you will be alerted to an incoming enemy attack.

Fortunately, the road back upstairs is a lot easier. Only a few scattered Skeletons and Wizards will be left roaming the basement.

OUTER EMBANKMENT

Most of the outer-lying areas are waterlogged, and this means you will find plenty of Mermen. They appear in larger groups, and the blue ones will shoot water bullets at you as well as use their usual rolling attacks. Enter the first circular room, and dispatch a group of Mermen and Bone Soldiers.

Battle another group of Mermen in the outer ledge, and continue straight through the next doorway. The next round room has more of those loveable Mermen. Clear the room, and exit to the south. Take the first right turn to travel west. This round room will lock you in until you defeat more Mermen and a pair of Armor Knights. Fight the knights first, since the Mermen are so numerous they'll likely get hit in the crossfire.

The last room in this direction is devoid of monsters, but it does contain the Mortalia Aqueduct Map. Grab this useful item, and backtrack to the open area to the east. From here, head south to the next round room. After fighting a few Bone Soldiers, take note of the reddish wall to the east. Attack this wall several times, and a doorway will appear.

Defeat the Merman on the walkway, and take out the lone Thief in the next room. Go north and destroy the Bone Soldiers to lower the barrier to the last room on this route. As easy as it was to get to this room, your reward is surprisingly well worth it. Here you will find an Extra ID Pocket that increases the number of Innocent Devils you can carry. Backtrack all the way to the east to complete the last room of the northern region.

Before you enter the last room, you will have to contend with more Mermen and several roving Ectoplasm. Avoid the floating spheres when they are purple, and drop them quickly to prevent becoming cursed. Enter the last room, and clear out the Bone Soldiers and more hovering Ectoplasm.

This spacious area has a cannon off in the far corner as well as a turret in the center. Race all the way to the back in order to commandeer the gun, and open fire on the turret in the tall tower.

Before giving up your new toy, shoot the Orcs around the tower. Once they are all gone, put your sights on a partially collapsed tower to the left. Keep shooting this tower until it falls over and creates a bridge.

In the far corner is a chest, but it is too far to get to without the Glide ability. Drop off this ledge near the cannon to collect a bag of $500. Follow the staircase back up to the main level, and cross over the fallen tower. Defeat the Bone Soldiers, and enter the door to the interior.

INTERIOR FIRST FLOOR

Use the Save Room on the right, and take out the Bone Soldiers and Dark Warlocks. These spellcasters are similar to their kin, and should always be dealt with first to prevent them from firing off their spells. Go through the doorway to the right, and you will face the same enemies as before, except here they're more abundant. Close in on the spellcasters to eliminate these projectile-casting magicians.

The final room is filled with a ton of Bone Skeletons. This is a great place to collect the Steel they drop and level up your I.D. When the enemies are gone, take the staircase to the second floor...

SECOND FLOOR

The very first room holds nothing back. The fiery cousins of the Mermen, the Fishmen, accompany several Dark Warlocks. The red enemies have the same type of attacks as the Mermen, except that they spit fireballs not water. Block or dodge these projectiles, and hunt the baddies down one at a time.

Head north to the next room, and while it may seem empty, a Frost Dragon is mounted on the far wall. As his name suggests, this skeleton dragon has an ice-shooting attack. Jump up to finish it off. Take the door at area 1 to the west. The next room holds three flying enemies, the Gaibons.

FIRST AND SECOND FLOORS

You will only be able to access two rooms in this section until much later in the game. However, after you fight past several Fishmen, the second room will contain a Potion. The rest of this area is filled with water, and until it is gone, you cannot finish this part of the map. Backtrack to area 1 finish off the rest of the level.

From area 1, continue on your current course, heading north into a U-shaped hallway filled with Blaze Masters. The next room seems to be a dead end, but if you attack the statue, a staircase will rise out of the ground, leading to the third floor.

THIRD FLOOR

To kick things off this first room is loaded with a mixture of Blaze Masters and Ghosts. The Ghosts will weave in and out of combat, so take out the dual-bladed Blaze Masters first.

The next room has the same match-up as before, but be careful not to get pinned into a corner by the Blaze Masters.

The fourth room will lock you in until you defeat the Wolf Skeletons. These skeletal monsters will circle and pounce on you in a pack formation. If you see a black shadow on the floor, prepare to block, as they will materialize from the shadow and leap at you.

The fifth room has more Wolf Skeletons to deal with, and once they are gone, enter the hallway and use the Save Room on the left. Cross over a narrow ledge

SECOND AND FIRST FLOOR

Battle past the Fishmen in the hallway to the large oval room to the south. The red bars will block your way until you defeat all the Fishmen in this room. The following room will add several Gaibon to fight alongside the Fishmen. These oversized bats can shoot a green ray that will paralyze you. Jump up and air combo them before they get a chance to use their sonar-like power.

The last room in this corridor has familiar Fishmen as well as Frost Dragons in each corner. Kill the dragons on one side of the room, and let the Fishmen come to you, so you can battle them without any distractions.

It is a long but straight shot past several Frost Dragons and Fishmen, but you are nearly at the end of this level. Obviously, do not stand your ground in the hallway surrounded by the dragons. Defeat the Fishmen far away from the wall clinging Frost Dragons, and then take them out one at a time.

On your left side are both a Warp Room and Save Room. Save your game now, because a Boss fight lies just beyond the red door. Before you tackle this Boss, walk down the second staircase to explore the area and grab the Potion in the corner.

Attempt to cross the bridge to trigger the Boss fight. This skeletal fish and its master will follow a pattern of attacks where they will fight alone and as a team. When they circle the outside area, the rider will launch a bunch of spears at you. Quickstep to avoid this attack. Later in the fight, these spears can become enhanced with fire. The boney fish swims rather quickly, but if you are toward the head of this beast, you can try to get one shot in before it submerges.

When the duet jump high into the air, the rider will jump off its mount and dive straight down with its trident-like weapon. Avoid the initial strike and its small shockwave area effect. Fighting the rider up close is one of your best chances to damage the Boss. Use your Battle I.D. and a strong weapon with long range to inflict as much damage as quickly as you can.

Meanwhile, its fishy partner may jump or flop across the floating platform to distract you. You can attack the big fish if you see it flopping around, but don't worry about its partner unless you see it beached on one side. If it stays on the platform without moving, get close to either side of its head to avoid the huge and damaging water beam. You can Quick Step through this, but if you are close, you can attempt to attack its head directly.

After you have fought the rider up close, and the Boss has lost a significant amount of its health, the rider will stop challenging you alone on the platform. When you see them jump into the air, don't expect the rider to try to fight you. Instead, prepare to dodge a volley of fiery spears.

At this stage of the battle, damaging the Boss will be more difficult to do. You will have to rely on hitting it as it circles around you, and when the duet flounders across the platform. When you see them plunder across the floating disc, stay to one side and attack. Note that this is also the only time you can steal from the Boss.

The Boss should not have a lot of health left, so use your Fairy I.D. to heal, and take your time attacking it to deplete its last bit of life.

WESTERN FOREST

Gliding Vassago will hover around you and attack with their dual weapons. They are a lot more dangerous than their ghostly kin. Use your Bird Type I.D. to take down this aerial threat.

At the far end of this road are several Sniper Orcs. They shoot a rapid succession of green arrows that can pin you down. Charge these snipers, and deal with them at close range.

At area 1, your path will diverge; head south through the arches. Continue battling the Vassago and Sniper Orcs as the road curves east. When you reach area 2, you will encounter a Red Ogre and a locked gate. The big brute has a huge club it swings low to the ground. It also possesses an eye laser that you must dodge. Tag team this monster with your Battle I.D. to make short work of this big enemy.

Circle back to area 1 using the route to the east, and return here when this loop is completed. From area 2, head south and fight off a band of Bone Soldiers. There is a watery area on the right that will become of interest later in the game, but for now, continue on this course and use the Save Room on the right. This is a familiar match-up, and you should know to take out the spellcasters first. The next U-shaped segment hosts Assassin Zombies. These are burrowing undead that will spring out of the ground and attack. Wait for them to surface and destroy them. However, look out when the ground is red, because they will be able to hurt you from below. These assassins also have the ability to poison you. For now, take a seat on the Stump Stool in this area.

Follow the road to area 4, and continue north to finish this loop. Up the way you will fight numerous Bone Soldiers that are great for leveling your I.D.s. The last section has both Assassins and Warlocks, which can be a tricky battle. Use the open area to your advantage, and separate the enemies from each other as you pick them off.

From area 4, go east to the new section of the map. Wolf Skeletons and Wizards will assault you as you make your way north. Upon reaching area 5, you'll find you have two ways to go. Before you do anything though, you must deal with the two Red Ogres and Dark Warlocks. Be sure to eliminate all the Warlocks before you engage the big guys. Circle around to their backside to avoid their eye laser and grabbing attacks.

Just below area 5 is the Forest of Jigramunt Map. Collect this item, and go through the nearby door to access the rest of the northern region. Fight off a pack of Wolf Skeletons, and take the long trail heading north. On your travels north, you will have to deal with a Basilisk. Their primary attack is a quick tail swipe. Attack them with a combo, Quick Step their tail and repeat.

At the top of the step are several Thunder Dragons. These dragons are like the ones you fought before, in that they are pinned to the wall, but they can hurl balls of electricity at you from a good distance. Use your Bird Type I.D. to help tackle these lofty enemies. Your path seems to end at this point, but the large green section is actually a breakable wall.

This will create a path back to the Abandoned Castle. Backtrack all the way south, and travel to the eastern exit towards area 6. The door in front of you will be barred until you defeat two Thunder Dragons and several Wolf Skeletons. Once they are gone, use the Save Room on the left.

The overall strategy to make it through this alive will be to use the weaker/easier monsters to refill your Fairy's heart bar to restore your health when needed. At the top of this tower is the Kit Bag - this will allow you to equip an extra accessory. From the top of this lofty tower, you can gain access to another more difficult place: the Tower of Evermore. To get there, you will need the Long Glide ability of your Bird Type I.D. Jump off the ledge with the moon directly in front of you, and Glide all the way to this new tower. At this point in the game this is probably too difficult for you to accomplish, so return here when you are stronger. The Tower of Eternity is pretty tough, but the experience and rewards are well worth it! Here is a list of what awaits you.

SOUTHERN FOREST

Once the tower is completed, be sure to save your game and head to the south. Take the final detour to the left to reach a portion of the southern forest. A few Bone Soldiers and Dark Warlocks will bar your way, but they are not a challenge for you now. The trail appears to end at a section of black charred-looking ground. Use the Battle I.D.'s Hip Press ability to smash through to a hidden section below.

There are two paths to take, and each one ends in a room with an item. The hallways are loaded with Dark Warlocks and Bone Soldiers that should be great for leveling your I.D.s. On your way to the first room, you will have to defeat several Red Ogres and Dark Warlocks. The big brutes aren't tough, but the warlocks can draw this battle out, if you don't tend to them first.

Inside of the first room will be a Bottom Chair, you can sit in it for fun, and a Carbon Steel that is great for making weapons and armor.

On the opposite side, you will have to contend with the same monsters. This room will contain an Ether. Make the long trek back to area 5, and you will finally be able to finish off the southern part of the forest. Go south past the Warp Room, and use the Save Room on the right. This section is filled with Lizardmen in possession of long spears which provide them with great range. They are fond of hopping into the air and diving straight down on you. Dodge this attack and retaliate.

At area 7, there is one last fork in the road. Go west and take on a group of Great Armor. These armor-clad fighters can block, and as their suit suggests, they can take a lot of damage. Side-step to get in back of them and attack! Look out for their dash move, but make sure you steal from them after this attack to gain some Carbon Steel.

In the room to the left is the Absolute Zero Ring that is great against ice attacks. Circle around this section back to area 7 to complete the loop then head east.

After a battle with some Lizardmen and Orcs, a gate will drop over the door to your left. This is a long ramp with several statues, arranged like blowing pins, at the bottom. You will need Iytei with the Should Ride ability to break through these pins. Hop on his back, and race down the hill to build up speed. When you hit the statues, they will shatter, and you can enter the room.

Sniper Orcs and Great Armor fill this first hallway.

Battle through these monsters, and enter the door on the left. Inside are the Woodman's Chair and the Rare Ring that will increase monster drops.

Go back out into the hallway and continue south fighting more Great Armor and Ogres. The last room on this route holds a Dragon Scale.

Exit out of this enclosed section, and continue on your original course going east. Use the Save Room on the right side to prepare for a Boss fight.

This oversize Minotaur will not attack you on its own. Instead, it will use the large stone columns to try to crush you like a bug. Because these columns are so large, the big beast will swing rather slowly. Use your Bird Type I.D. to hover around its head to distract it while you tackle it from below. Your airborne friend can be damaged while it flutters around, but it will avoid most of the ground swipes that are intended to hit you. The Minotaur can mix up the number of swings it will perform, so use short combos and Quick Step once or twice to avoid its attacks.

Fortunately this beast will break or toss the column it is using and have to get another one. Follow in back of it and continue to attack as it retrieves another weapon.

Another type of column attack you must look out for is when the monster crouches down and spins in a circle. This has a large damage radius, and it may be tricky to time its rotation, so just avoid this attack altogether when you see the enemy crouch.

If you move to the opposite side of the room, Minotaurus will toss a pillar at you. These can be avoided pretty easily. The boss will continue to grab new columns, and throw them at you until there is only one left. His other ranged attack is a stomp move where he leaps into the air. It is difficult to damage the boss in this attack state, but it is your only chance to steal from it.

By attacking in short bursts and dodging Minotaurus's swings, you should be able to whittle away his life bar in no time.

SOUTHERN ALLEYWAYS

The Zombie welcome committee is out to greet you in this deserted town. Dispatch the undead, and turn right to explore the southern-most end of the map.

After you curve around the U-shaped bottom section, an iron gate will block your entrance to a room at the right. You will need the Magic Circle ability to slide under this door, so be sure to return here later. Go through the next doorway, and head west. This town is made up of a series of connecting roads, and you will want to explore each section.

In the circular room with a fountain, you will find the Cordova Town Map. Stay on your current course going due west into a hallway filled with Great Armors. Just up the road will be a Warp Room on your left. Round the next corner, and enter the ornate purple door. This is a very odd little room that has a collection of all the chairs you have sat in throughout your adventure. Take a seat to check out the funny comments. You can also use the cannon for a bit of target practice. After a couple of laughs, head back to the fountain area.

This time go through the doorway to the north. Numerous Vassago fill these quiet streets. Travel down the end of this path, and be sure to complete the two southern sections that are filled with Ghouls. These undead also have a nasty habit of vomiting up yellow ooze. I guess the undead can't hold their stomachs. Look out for their grabbing attack, as this simple move can be very damaging.

When the lower region is completed, head out through one of the northern exits by area 1. These sections are filled with Dead Fencers and Dead Barons. Be sure to block their quick attacks and counter them. There is another road that runs parallel to this one that contains more of the dead sword fighters. Complete this other area as well to gain experience.

Fight your way past several Assassin Zombies and a pair of Lizard Shaman at the top of a stone staircase. Use the doorway on your left at area 2 to travel west. In an open area, you will encounter a Skeleton Rider. This is a mounted enemy that can attack with its lance or command its steed to perform a fire attack. Strafe around this foe to avoid its charge move and ranged abilities. You can knock the rider off its steed, but its mount will dash around the area with incredible speed, and it must be put down separately.

In the last open area of this floor, you will need to deal with several Executioners and Shamans. Defeat the quick and deadly Shamans first, before you focus on the massive brutes. Be sure to check out the Bench in the corner, and when the monsters are destroyed, head down into the basement.

Your devil-forging adversary will bring out his most powerful Innocent Devil to test you. This I.D. is the advanced form of the Devil Type, and it is extremely resilient. Don't waste your time trying to battle this I.D., since your target is its master, Isaac. As you try to defeat your nemesis, he will occasionally command the I.D. to attack you by declaring "Kill Him." The I.D. will go underground and emerge in a funnel of flames. Run to avoid this attack, and Quick Step as it is about to emerge.

The other command Isaac will issue is "Go." This will send his Innocent Devil darting toward you. When you hear the command, be sure to block or side step this incoming drill-like attack.

Let your Innocent Devil distract his while you focus all your attention on the devil forger. His weapon has incredible range, so use a retaliation type of strategy where you dodge his attack and counter with your own. Be especially careful when he laughs and brings his weapon overhead, as this attack will have a very large damage radius.

In addition to his physical strikes, he can summon a cyclone to surround him. If you have the Wind Ring, this will not harm you that much. Still, wait for the winds to die down and launch an assault of your own.

One of his quickest moves is a fiery uppercut that can catch you by surprise. If you can avoid this attack, you will get a chance to steal from him.

When he is defeated, watch the cool cinema and proceed through the green door to acquire the Mage Type Innocent Devil.

TOWER'S ENTRANCE

A few Sniper Orcs are scattered in the far corner of the first room. Hunt them down with your new I.D and eliminate them. Eventually Vas-sago will join the Orcs in harassing you. Quick Step the green arrows and take out the snipers first.

When you enter a large, empty-looking room, it will appear you are at a dead end. However, there is a large lever on the right that will raise a staircase to a higher platform. The trick is that the stairs will only stay put for a short time. Attack the lever, and use your Time Stop ability to make it to the top of the stairs.

Head up the next long set of stairs that won't collapse. At the top, you will need to fend off two White Gravials.

TOWER FIRST FLOOR

Once inside the Tower, a massive Iron Gladiator will attack. It has a large ball-and-chain arm that it will use to swing at you. It can also shoot the spike ball at you, and it will paralyze if it connects. Attack this hulking figure after you successfully dodge its ball attacks.

Take the exit to the east. Each of the connecting hallways has a group of White Gravials, and the next room will pit you against several Iron Gladiators at the same time. The big guys are not tough to deal with as long as you keep moving to avoid their long attacks. The room to the north contains a lot of Flame Demons, so be sure to have an aerial I.D to drop them from the sky. Continue west and take down the Flame Demons in this room as well. Note that in the corner is the Machine Tower Map.

Use the Save Room on the right, and head straight into the next section with Undead Lords. They sound intimidating, but they are actually basic Skeletons with a bit more armor and a leaping attack. The Red Steel they drop will be a great material to upgrade your weapons and armor.

The last room on this floor is a giant lift that you must operate manually. Defeat the Great Armor in this room, and attack the long gear shaft in the corner repeatedly. You must continue to attack this pillar continuously, or the platform will slow down and start to descend.

Go outside and several Harpies will swoop in on you. They have a wind attack, but their primary assault comes from sharp talons, especially when they lift you off the ground. Make sure to use a flying Innocent Devil to help deal with these dirty birds.

Lizard Shamans will join the Harpies on this ledge and you must survive attacks from above and below. Deal with one threat at a time to make this fight more manageable. At the end of this walkway is a Warp Room on the right. Turn left to enter another lift that is filled with Death

Your next battle is strictly with Executioners, but their big size makes it easy to hit several of them at a time. A good ranged attack is the way to go in this fight.

Dead Fencers haunt the next hallway. Their dash and uppercut attacks are hard to avoid in a group. Block these attacks, and pursue them until they are gone for good. Exit through the doorway at the end of the hall.

This is a loud room filled with gears. There seems to be no place to go, so you must make your own exit. Walk around the large machinery to the left, and jump up the platforms to reach the top.

Attack the clatter gear mechanism that is giving off sparks, and watch the chain reaction.

This simple maneuver will create a hole in the southern wall. Jump down, and walk through your hand-crafted exit.

The following hallway has numerous Dead Barons. Like their brethren, they are quick and aggressive. Also, they can take a lot of damage for not wearing any armor. Be sure to deal with them one at a time. Use the Save Room and prepare for a boss fight. Head up the stairs to the next floor.

It appears this character is more than a harmless observer, as he initially stated. He is equipped with a thin, fast blade, and to make matters worse, he can teleport and attack from any direction. Lock onto him, and Quick Step to dodge his attacks, or simply block, since his strikes usually come in pairs. Once you learn the timing of his attacks, you will be able to Perfect Guard his thrusts, but many of them are very fast, and it's a lot safer to block.

His most lethal strike is an overhead attack that will poison you if you get hit. This attack and its effect may not worry you now, but he has a trick up his sleeve that can make his poison strike lethal.

After the fight has raged on for a while, he will fly up in the air and declare, "Oh Time, advance!" When he does this, he will increase the flow of time. This doesn't make him faster, but if you are poisoned, it will increase the poison's effect, since the damage is based on a regular interval of time. If you have not gotten the Purity Ring, you must uncurse yourself with a Serum or magic ability! As he continues to perform this spell, time will move even faster, and if you remain poisoned, you are a walking dead man.

The other thing you will need to contend with during this time dilation is the thorny vines that appear. Dodge these vines and his attacks until he drops his guard, then let him have it.

If you run out of curse for your toxic state, you could also use your Time Stop ability to return the flow of time to normal. Also, you can try to use this ability to counter his timing stopping command, "You Can't Move." If you time this right, you will be able to cancel his command and even get the chance to steal from him.

He has a long enough pause after a series of attacks for you to land a decent combo. Don't get greedy, just block his attacks and counter to make quick work of him. Once his life is drained, the fight is not over, as he reverses time and his health bar is refilled. In this second stage of the fight, he pulls a pistol on you. Dodge this attack, and retaliate to finish him off once and for all.

When the battle is won, go into the next room, and claim your new Devil Type I.D.

A MONSTER BORN OF WIND, HIDDEN INSIDE A RAPIDLY SPINNING WHIRLWIND. ATTACKS WITH BLADES OF AIR.

Assassin Zombies join the Undead Lords to challenge you in the next several areas. Mop up the Lords first, and then deal with the tunneling Assassins once the coast is clear. Use a long combo attack on the Assassins to keep them from going underground.

Continue north until your path is barred and several Jin materialize. These are wind-type spellcasters, and if you have the Wind Ring equipped, they will be a lot less damaging. As you would expect, they have several wind-type projectiles to battle you at a distance. However, they are very tough up close, and will swing at you several times in succession. Wait for their attack string to run its course and then combo them.

The Jin team up with Thunder Demons in the next room. Focus your initial attack on the Jin to remove the ground threat, then summon a flying I.D to help battle the aerial Demons. The best time to attack them is when they are summoning a lighting storm or after they try to swoop in on you. At both points, they will be momentarily defenseless.

Head west, and a new and beautiful canine will pounce on you. These pretty white pups, Armored Sprinters, travel in packs. They will coordinate their efforts to some extent by circling you and attacking from all directions. They also have an ultrasonic bark that you will need to dodge. And make these next couple of encounters more difficult, they are assisted with air support of the Thunder Demons.

The final room of this region has a Rapid Sniper. This is an archer-type enemy with a machine gun-like weapon that can fire projectiles at a very fast rate.

CENTRAL RUINS

Enter the Save Room on the right, and be sure to save your game. The next series of battles are very tough, and you might not survive.

The next area is an open space, and you will get to use the cannon once again. Charge to the top of the stairs, and take over the large gun. Shoot out the turrets on the upper sections of the wall, but don't discount the Vassago that are swarming around. You've got to shoot these foes, or they will wear down and destroy your weapon.

If you can retain your gun, turn it on the barricade in front of the door. Once this is gone, your real target is the Skeleton Troopers that will run wild in this area. These mounted enemies are tough, and they have the annoying habit of running around at high speed, making it difficult to zone in on them. They will dart at you very quickly, but they will continue to run in a circle around you. If you are patient, you can attack them as they pass by, or simply wait for them to get tired. If you only manage to throw the rider off, you will still have to deal with their sprinting mount. The real reason you want to keep this cannon intact is that to the left of the barricade is a small breakable section of wall. Shoot this with your big gun and you will find the Innocent Supporter. This great find will lower the amount of hearts your I.D. uses when it performs a special move. Be sure to grab the Afalon Ruins Map before you leave this area.

If you have ice attacks, exploit their weakness, otherwise dodge to the side, and let them circle around you while you catch your breath.

The last area will begin to slope upward, and it is filled with Wights and Flame Demons. The Wights still have that nasty dual-spinning mace attack, but the Flame Demons are your chief concern. Clear the skies as much as possible, and then deal with the ground dwellers.

Run through the U-shaped hallway, taking out the Flame Demons. At the end of this corridor, you will face a large group of Fishmen. NORTHERN RUINS

A Slogra and several Wights await you in the first room. Dispatch them quickly, and continue straight through to the exit. A group of Great Armors fills the next room. Attack these foes from the back to avoid their shields. If you use the door to the north, you can enter a Warp Room. However, your target is the strange, vine-covered door to the east. Use a fire attack from your Mage or Bird Type I.D. to burn through the living barricade. A door will be revealed behind the trellis, and you can now enter the eastern section of this region.

The halls are filled with more Great Armors. At the split in the road, take the right fork to enter a room with a Leather Chair and Frenzy of Wind.

Take the other path that leads to a room with several goodies. In here you will find Damascus Steel, a chest with an HP Max Up, and a Hilarious Chair.

Return back to the first room of the Northern Ruins, and take the western exit this time. The next corridor is loaded with White Dragons. You can jump up to fight these foes, or simply run past them if you wish. Half way through the hallway is a small button on the top of the wall. If you have a Fairy with the Press It and See ability, it will automatically press the button, revealing a new area to the north.

These halls are filled with Spirits that are great for leveling your I.D. Take the path to the right, and enter a room that will contain the Director's Chair and the Megingelos. When this magical band is equipped, the lower you are on HP, the more damage you will do.

Head back out to the hallway, and take the first exit on the right. The top part of this road will lead to a doorway on your right, with a room that contains the Comedian's Chair and Orichalcum. This metal is very tough to get, so be sure to use it wisely when making items.

Go back out and head west to the last room. What, no chair! I guess you'll have to settle for an XS Potion. This is a very powerful brew that will recover all of your hit points. When you are done with this rewarding detour, continue back on your previous course, fighting Fishmen, and use the door on your right. This corridor has a few Gations, but they are spaced out one at a time, so this should not be a tough fight.

At the end of the road is a chest with a Spirit of Fuji. There is also a breakable wall just behind the chest.

Going through this doorway will take you to the outside area of the Abandoned Castle.

To finish this level, backtrack and head west to the Save Room on the right. A tough Boss fight awaits you, so you may want to first warp back to Julia's Shop to purchase a few items. Additionally, upon entering the next room, you'll find yourself teleported to a new location. Be sure you are finished exploring the Ruins before entering the final room...

ABANDONED CASTLE

When you enter the next room, a cinema will play that will trigger events that will teleport you back to the Abandoned Castle. Climb up the dilapidated, red-carpeted staircase to the fourth floor. Enter the boss room where you fought the very first boss, and use the staircase on the left to ascend to the fifth floor.

CURRY

This time your fight with the famous Belmont is for real. You must win this battle to proceed to the next level. Trevor has a lot of the same moves as before, but many of them take on new aspects. For example, he still has his glowing green whip attacks, but he also has a torpedo-type move where he will dive at you while spinning his whip. Don't try to block this drilling maneuver; simply side step it instead.

You can still Perfect Guard his regular whip attacks, but the timing is a lot more deceiving this time around. Note that a regular block is not enough to prevent you from taking damage. Fortunately, his whip pattern is the same each time, so you can learn when to attempt to block and counter. The other option is simply to Quick Step until he is done attacking and then retaliate.

His flaming charge move now has two parts. In other words, he will perform two dashes in a row. Quick Step out of the way, and then perform another one to the side so his move does not track you. He will also be open to attack after performing this move.

His longest attack is his melee combo that ends with a series of kicks and one last dashing kick. This can be tricky to block, so dodge the entire time and fight back when he is tired.

Be very careful when he summons his holy strength and has a yellow glow. In this state, he's a lot more powerful. Your best bet is to avoid him and attack only when you are sure to score a hit.

The key to this fight is to dodge and counter. Dodge his attacks, and use the slight pause after his attacks to combo him. The best I.D. choice would be any of the fliers, since he has such powerful ground attacks. Trevor does a good amount of damage, but if you keep your head and don't take too many chances, you can show him the true power of a Devil Forgemaster. When the battle is won, you will enter the Infinite Corridor.

The first floor acts as a connector to the other levels. The long road leading up this ramp is filled with Spirits. These are not tough enemies to deal with, but they are very plentiful. Use a lower level I.D. to power it up on these long strolls.

Enter the room at the top of the incline, and you will meet the Final Guards. Not only do these enemies block, they have a protective green armor spell.

You must wait for this aura to wear off and then attack them after they strike. If you are low on funds, try stealing from them to net $500 at each pop.

A slew of Undead Lords and Spirits await you in the next room. These should not present much of a challenge, but their experience and Evo Crystals are valuable to you Innocent Devils.

Head east and use the Save Room on the left before proceeding any further. This next corridor connects to two doors that loop around the center. These routes are very long, and they are filled with Blaze Phantoms. These blue-colored cousins of the Blaze Skeletons can take a lot of damage, and they move very quickly. When you trip one up, pursue it until it is dead, or you may find yourself quickly outmaneuvered by this horde.

Travel east out of the center loop, and in the next two rooms, you will encounter Unicorns. These upright versions of the fabled beasts carry a large book that can be used to cast spells or attack you with knife-like pages. When all the enemies are defeated, head back down to the first floor.

After a short jaunt through another outdoor walkway, you will face the same enemy set-up. This should be a familiar fight, and as long as you don't get double-teamed by spells and fireballs, you will be fine.

SECOND FLOOR

This isn't the second floor you are used to. The walls are partially destroyed, revealing the emptiness of this dimension. Also, the floors are a bright green, and are lined with strange patterns. They don't call this the Infinite Corridor for nothing! Work your way straight up, defeating the Ectoplasm in your path. Enter the next room, and climb the steps to the third floor.

THIRD FLOOR

Wight and more Ectoplasm haunt this room. This match-up is not tough, as long as you don't bump into the Ectoplasm and become cursed. If you do, be sure to cure yourself instantly. Race through the next hallway filled with Thunder Dragons, and enter the door on the bottom of the slope.

This next room has a mysterious chair in the center, and this time, the high back emerald seat is not just for fun. Have a seat in Emperor's Throne, and you will be lifted to a platform above that is loaded with goodies. In the locked chests on this level, you will find many valuable items, including the Dark Crystal, Spirit of Fuji, Carbon Steel, Ether, Ceremonial Tool, Adamantine, Forgotten Memory and Holy Man's Vein.

When you are done collecting all the materials, there is a Warp Room to the north you can use, but continue to explore the level using the western door. There are a ton of these things in this open space, so use one of your best I.D., like a Battle Type, to deal out some serious damage. Also, keep in mind that there is a Save Room to the right that you may need to restore your health. When the long and difficult battle is won, go out the eastern doorway.

You'll come to a short, L-shaped piece of road that stops at a dead end that contains the Void Ring. This is a great tool that gives protection from dark attacks. You must defeat all the enemies in this section to lower the bars back to the big open area.

Go back to the open battlegrounds, and take the exit on the opposite side. The first segment will match you up against Gi-Lees and Ectoplasms. Make quick work of them, and fight through the next two sections filled with Blaze Phantoms. At the end of the road is a green bag worth $1,000. Note the wall markings: If you have the Decipher ability, grab the cash and go back upstairs to area 1.

THIRD FLOOR

From area 1, head south to the next room that also contains a puzzle of some sort. Like the room on the opposite end, this one also requires a special ability of one of your Innocent Devils. In this case, you will need a Battle Type I.D. with the Brute Force L2 ability in order to open the huge metal doors.

SECOND FLOOR

Like the previous sections, this has a wide-open battleground, but this time, it is loaded with Bone Soldiers and Undead Lords. These are not as tough as the Blaze Phantoms on the other side, but they are rather numerous.

Use the exit to the left that leads west to explore this area. The walls are lined with Thunder Dragons, and at the end of the path, is your prize, the Lightning Stone. Grab this precious collectible, and do back through the exit on the other side of the open area.

A whole graveyard filled with Undead Lords swarm the first hallway. Dispatch them, and take on the Ectoplasm and the Amduscias. These advanced forms of Unicorns have the same type of lunging attack, but their spell creates a whirlwind of pages that can damage you.

Use the same strategy on these foes as you would on other spellcasters: Get in close and attack!

The final segment of the hallway holds a Phlogiston that is a very rare find! For the last time, go back to area 1, and take the western exit.

This headless warrior is equipped with a large cursed sword and shield. Fortunately each successful hit does not curse you, but it does have two power attacks that can. If you have the Curse Sealing Ring now would be a good time to equip it! Both of these power moves are telegraphed very well so you should see these two attacks from a mile away. When you notice its sword glowing blue, he will shoot a narrow beam of blue light from his blade and spin around. Jump over this attack or simply Quick Step right through it. Its other cursed attack is preceded by a maneuver where it will thrust its sword into the ground. This attack will result in a large blue cone that surrounds the Boss. When you notice it lean back to thrust its sword down, run out of the range of this attack's big damage radius.

As you can probably guess from looking at it, this Boss's main form of attack is with its sword. It will usually perform multiple strikes in a row, which can break through your block. You can Perfect Guard these attacks but you won't gain much time to retaliate.

After several swipes with its sword it will dash at you. Dodge this attack and be sure to take advantage of the time it takes the Boss to right itself by attacking with a quick combo.

The only other move you must be cautious of is when it leaps in the air and comes crashing straight down. This attack creates a huge shock wave that can damage you or your I.D.s. However, this is also the only time to steal from this Boss.

To defeat this undead Boss, try a flying Innocent Devils to chip away at it. They only time they can be seriously damaged is during one of the boss's power moves. Since these attacks are telegraphed so well you can even put your I.D. away to protect it. Its sword attacks are too quick to counter so wait for the pause it has after the dash move and power attacks to launch your combos.

MORTVIA AQUEDUCT

After the last cinema plays, you will be transported to the Mortvia Aqueduct. The powerful magic that has revealed Dracula's Castle has drained the water out of many parts of the other levels. Also, at this stage of the game, your leveled-up Innocent Devils should have had a chance to obtain all the abilities they would need to access the previously unreachable areas. With these two key factors in place, you can now complete all the other areas in the game. See the following wrap-up chapter "100% Completion" for details. For now, focus on Dracula and putting an end to the curse.

Use the Glide ability to cross the gap to the entrance of the forest. Grab the High Potion on this ledge and Glide back. With the water level lowered, you can now cross the bridge that extends from the right staircase. A huge iron door prevents your entrance. Use your Battle Type I.D. with its Brute Force ability to gain entrance into the dark domain.

FIRST FLOOR - OUTER WALLS

The first room and connecting hallway have a Slogra guarding them. This is just a little warm up exercise, as there is only one. However, the level of this and all other monsters in the castle are a lot higher. Don't cut these foes any slack; combo them quickly and drop them to the ground.

Work your way south, and several more Slogra will attack you. They are not alone this time, as Gaibons will join them.

Take out the ground threat first, since the Slogra have very long range.

When you reach the southern part of the wall, a pair of Rapid Snipers will open fire. Quick Step their shots, and get in close to eliminate them.

Then next area has a trio of Red Ogres. They are tough monsters to take down, so consider using a Battle I.D. to match their physical force. Also, don't run too far into the room to attract the attention of the whole group. Try to pull them away one at a time.

As you head north, you will face several Spirits and a break in your path. To complicate things, Rapid Snipers are on the other side of the ledge. Use the Glide ability to cross the gap, and eliminate these Orcs. Drop down into the pit below, if you want to level up a bit against the Spirits.

The next room offers exits to the north and east. Continue on your current jaunt north to finish the outer walls. At the end of this path are a few Spirits and the Highbrow Chair. Go back south, and take the east doorway to enter the interior of the first floor. Smash the wall behind this chair to receive the Medusa Ring that will protect you from being turned to stone.

FIRST FLOOR - INTERIOR

Surprisingly the first room is empty. Keep going east, though, and you will find a whole room of Frost Demons. These chilling aviaries have an icy breath attack that can be very crippling. The Absolute Zero Ring will offer you a lot of protection from them, but they can still swoop in and attack you. When they dart toward you, dodge out of the way, and let loose with a fierce combo.

More Frost Demons and several Spirits occupy the next room. The Spirits aren't a major threat, but be sure to clear them out first to avoid their staggering charge attack. When all the enemies are defeated, be sure to complete the hallway to the west filled with Spirits. When you reach the first room, return to the last spot and use the southern exit.

Travel past the first door on your right, and enter the room straight ahead of you.

Frost Demons and Armored Sprinters occupy this room. Use an airborne Innocent Devil to fight the flyers, while you tackle the pups on the ground. Use the exit to the west, and travel through the long hallway to the last room on this floor.

In the final room, the red gates bar your progress. You must defeat all the Armored Sprinters and Final Guards. Take on the white wolves first, since the Final Guards shielding them will be a lot trickier to deal with. When the dogs are gone, circle around the big knights, and let them have it. Before you descend to the basement, be sure to use the exit to the north to completely finish the last hallways on this floor.

BASEMENT

Enter into the grungy corridors, and use the Save Room on the right. Your first challenge on this floor is a swarm of Undead Lords, but they should be no match for you! Crush them to dust, and enter the next room where several White Dragons accompany them. Take down the wall-mounted dragons, and sweep up the rest of the undead.

Your next challenge is a group of Flame Demons. The Boiling Ring helps a lot on these fiery foes. Attack them when they swoop down close or jump up to do an air combo.

Fight through another room of Undead Lords, and the next challenge will be a room of icy foes, including Frost Demons and Dragons. Keep away from the Dragons while battling the flyers, or simply smash them first to allow you some room to maneuver. If you have a flame attack, use it!

Three hulking Executioners are cramped in the next room. As long as you can avoid their mace-like arm and attack from the rear, they should not be tough.

Defeat the undead in the next room to get to the final room of this floor. This last fight involves both Executioners and Undead Lords. Since the room is filled with enemies, large and small, just keep swinging, and you will hit several at a time. When the floor is won, use the stairs to go to the first floor.

Vassago haunt these hallways. They are not that lethal, but they can pass in and out of the area, making it hard to defeat them. There are no barriers in these sections, so kill as many as you can and continue east. At the next junction, stay on course and exit back down to the basement.

BASEMENT

Flea Men and Skeletons will assault you when you enter this secluded section. They should be a push-over for a devil forgemaster at your level, but be sure to use a lower level Innocent Devil to gain valuable experience.

The goal of this little diversion will be obvious when you enter the next room to collect the Miracle Egg. This is a precious material that is very hard to find.

Also, in the corner is another cookie chair, the Throne of Bones. Return back upstairs to the first floor connecting hallway, and go south.

FIRST FLOOR CONNECTOR

The southern path ends quickly near a shredded fence. Select your Demon Innocent Devil, and use the Magic Circle ability to slide underneath the fence to go to the second floor.

SECOND FLOOR

Efreet fill this room with their blazing presence. Their fire attacks are their trademark, but don't underestimate their power swinging strikes. These swipes are performed in quick succession, and if you are caught off guard, they are very damaging. Quick Step their assault, and counter from the side or back.

Jin live in the next room, and their sheer number makes this a tough fight. Like the Efreet, their swinging attack is very deadly, especially in large numbers. Space them out a bit, and take them down one at a time.

The only thing that could be worse is fighting both of these enemies together, and that is exactly what you have to do next. Dodge a lot to position yourself out of harm's way, and let loose with a combo. Avoid getting pinned down by several at a time, and you should make it out alive.

Use the Save Room on the right, and enter the next room of vomiting Zombies. These are simple foes at this point, but they yield a lot of experience.

The last room contains tougher undead, Ghouls. Be careful of their deadly hug from the grave and clean this area of their rotted flesh before heading up stairs.

THIRD FLOOR

More Ghouls for you to contend with! Send them back to the grave, and head into the next room, where a veritable bevy of Ghouls stalk -- and they're not alone. Assassin Zombies will make this fight a bit more difficult. Wait for the assassins to emerge from underground, and finish them off before they can burrow back down.

The third room holds a huge Cyclops and more Assassin Zombies. Battle the big brute, but keep an eye out for the tunneling assassins. When one of these pops out, switch your attack toward this foe until it is defeated.

In the fourth room, the match-up is pretty similar to before, except this time you also have to deal with a Red Ogre. Once again, focus on the big guy and be on the look out for the assassins' underground attack where their tunneling emits a red glow. This attack can damage you even though you can't see them.

The final room of this floor is filled with big brutes. You will need to battle Cyclops and Ogres at the same time to lower the barrier and gain access to the fourth floor. Both types of enemies wield large weapons with pretty good range, but you can use a Battle Type I.D. to go toe to toe with these big boys and come out victorious. When the fight is over, head up to the next floor.

FOURTH FLOOR

Death Rippers lurk in this first room, and although they are not very damaging, they can be quite pesky. However, in the following room, you will face a big and tall mismatch of Cyclops and Death Rippers. Ignore the little guys, and take out the Cyclops one at a time. The Death Rippers hop around so fast that they will probably run into your attacks on the big guy.

FIFTH FLOOR

Amduscias are the threat in this first room. Their whirling pages make them tough to attack. Be sure to use a strong Innocent Devil to deal with them, since they can take a fair amount of damage. Wait for the spell to die down and then combo them like crazy.

The next room will throw in a couple of Harpies into the mix. This can be a draining fight! Use your I.D. to cast some of its strongest abilities, and don't take any chances.

The third room hosts the towering Iron Gladiators. These hulking monsters are very strong, so dodge their ball-and-chain attack and counter with your own. Keep dodging their massive spiked ball and retaliate with a combo of your own.

In the last room of this series are more Cyclops and Harpies. Try to avoid the oversized birds while you remove the Cyclops. The Harpies are quick, and it will take all your attention to eliminate them, so be sure to finish the Cyclops first.

In the final room of this corridor, you must face Harpies as well as the Iron Gladiators. Focus your efforts on each gladiator, and then turn your attention to the horrible hovering birds.

FOURTH FLOOR

In this small section of the fourth floor, you will battle several Final Guards. Their magical shields can draw this fight out a bit, but keep attacking and they will fall.

The next room has more Final Guards and Rapid Snipers as well. Strafe your way to the back of the room, and drop these archers. Once they are defeated, attack the Final Guards with any piercing attacks you have. When the battle is won, head back up to the fifth floor.

FIFTH FLOOR

Iron Gladiators and Final Guards make this room a cramped combat zone. The Final Guards will need special attention because of their shields, so attack the gladiators first. Dodge their metal ball, and attack the hulking monsters from the rear. When everything is eliminated, go through the next hallway and up to the next floor.

SIXTH FLOOR

Step into the blue light of the healing field and proceed to the next room to fight the Rapid Snipers and Iron Gladiators. Once again, take out the Snipers, but be careful of the paralyzing ball of the gladiators.

The next room only has two enemies. However, in the rear of the room is a broken section of wall that can lead to another area. Use the Magic Circle ability to slide under the hole in the wall.

Just ahead is a familiar green door that can only mean a new Innocent Devil. However, this one is special. In order to awaken this I.D. you've got to have a hold of the Pumpkin Mace. To make this weapon, you will need several materials and other items ... it is a somewhat complicated process, but your reward will be the Pumpkin Type Innocent Devil. Check the weapon and armor section for a complete list of how to make the Pumpkin Mace, but to give you some ideas, take a look at these ingredients: Mace, Miracle Egg, Jade, Sun Tears, and Red Steel.

This is a very mysterious Innocent Devil and a long standing inside joke of Castlevania. Don't underestimate this I.D. just because it's so magnificently silly looking - it yields great dividends bonus-wise.

Follow your previous path to the next room that contains several Slogra and Rapid Snipers. The large reptiles are tough, but you still need to take out the snipers first. Tag team the Slogra with you I.D. to remove them as fast as you can. Their long range and speed make them one of the most dangerous monsters in the game.

The last room has several more Slogra and Giabons as well. Fight the ground foes first and then concentrate on the air attack. When all the monsters are gone, head up to the final floor of the castle.

SEVENTH FLOOR

Tons of Thieves will dart around in all directions. They can't hurt you much, but they will try to take your hard-earned goodies. Show them that crime doesn't pay.

On the left is a Warp Room that you can use if you want to power up before the final battle. Using this room you can transport yourself to any other level of the game and collect materials and level up your Innocent Devils. When you are ready for the finale save your game in the room on the left and trek up the long staircase to the final showdown.

This time around you must face Isaac who is equipped with a laser sword and three Innocent Devils. The difficulty of this fight will depend largely on how leveled up your own I.D.s are. He does not use any tricks or special I.D.s, so you can fight him with the same exact type if you wish.

The fight starts out against Isaac alone. He will perform several types of combos with his laser sword, including a blade toss move. Dodge or Perfect Guard his attacks, and when his combo ends, launch one of your own.

When he has lost half of his blue life bar, he will summon his first I.D., Crimson, a Bird type. This is a quick aerial foe, so summon your own flyer, including your Devil Type. Also, be sure to equip the Boiling Ring, since this is a flame-shooting dragon. While his I.D. is out, he will have a protective shield, so you must destroy his I.D. before you can inflict any damage to him again. Lock on his I.D., and double team it! Use jumping air combos to take the fight to the skies.

Note that while he is invincible when his Innocent Devil is out, he will still attack you. Quick Step past his attacks and focus solely on his I.D. Once the I.D. is gone, fight him until his blue life bar is almost gone. At this point, he will summon another I.D.

This time he will bring forth the cute and cuddly Iytel. This is a powerhouse Battle Type I.D.

with a lot of hit points, but at least it is on the ground. Pick your own Battle I.D. and equip a high-damage weapon to dish out the high damage it will take to drop his buddy. When he is solo, dish out as much damage as possible before he summons his last I.D.

The last Innocent Devil he will call forth is Razet. This Shogun-like warrior is a very tough and damaging Battle Type I.D. Use your own Battle Type, if it still has some life left, and finish it off with the abilities of your other surviving I.D.s. This companion of his can do some serious damage, so take no chances and use all the power of your I.D.s if you have to.

Finally, he will be out of Innocent Devils, and you can concentrate on defeating him with any I.D.s you have left. Keep in mind that he is weak to ice attack, so you Mage Type I.D. may be very handy here. He will add a new purple glowing charge attack, but you can Quick Step this move and retaliate pretty easily.

If you are finding yourself very low on health, use your Fairy Type I.D. to heal during the parts of the battle when it is Isaac alone. Just run and Quick Step until you are back at a proper health level. Keeping your health up is very important, because this is only the first Boss battle, and once he is defeated, there is another.

PULSE

Good old Death is back again. He's a recurring enemy in Castlevania, and surprisingly, he has a lot of the same moves as before. You think he'd learn a few new tricks in the underworld. Don't be intimidated by this foe... step right up to him and combo away.

Death has many attacks, and early on, you will have to look out for the large fiery disc he sends forth. This seems to track you a little, so wait until it is just upon you before you Quick Step out of the way.

Death's Scythe is simply huge, but the wind up for this attack should give you plenty of time to get out of the way. If you can time this well, you can jump straight up and perform an air combo as the blade passes harmlessly underneath you!

It also has a mini-scythe attack where he sends several small blades whirling at you. You can block a few of these, but they will eventually break your guard. Dodge these alternating left to right and block when you are forced to.

Death also has a ranged attack that consists of exploding pillars of fire. If you keep running, these will not be able to track you well, and you should avoid them unharmed.

One of his last attacks is the most devastating, if you are caught in it. When you see him summon an orange ball of energy, get out of the area fast. Death will issue forth a huge fire bomb that covers most of the screen. Of course, just after this attack is the only time you can steal from Death. Use the Magic Circle ability to stay in close unharmed.

Use the time in between his attack to lay down as much damage as you can. This fight will largely be alternating between Quick Stepping past his attacks and getting back up close to inflict damage. Be sure to use an agile I.D. as your companion, especially a flier, since Death has devastating ground-based attacks.

Lord Dracula has a variety of attacks, and doesn't stay put very long to allow for a long combo. This battle is about patience! His attacks are not tough to avoid, but at the same time, you will not be able to damage him very much. Be sure to equip the Void Ring for these battles with the dark lord. On a side note, this is your only chance to sit in Dracula's Throne to complete your "chair quest."

One of his more basic attacks is when he appears by his throne and flies into the air. He will project a thin orange beam that will track you, and later a wall of flames will emerge from this line. Run around the open area, and just when the line ready to turn to flames, run up next to him and attack him in the air.

Another one of his homing attacks springs forth when he issues the command "Go!" A purple set of spikes will rise out of the ground from his position and track you. Run around in a loose circle until they stop appearing. Be sure to end up in back of Dracula to score a quick hit.

One of his most damaging attacks come after he declares, "I will reduce you to ashes." Start running in any direction, and Quick Step after a second to avoid his materializing grab. This attack does a ton of damage, so be sure to avoid it. Also, you need to avoid this, because right after this attack is your best window to damage him. This is also your only chance to steal from him.

Your other opportunity to really score some damage is after his attack, "Scatter to the winds." This will produce several large purple spheres, but you should be able to dodge to the side and throw in a quick combo.

His final attack occurs after he has lost a significant amount of health. He will leap into the air, and surround himself in a cone of fire. This has little warning, and you can get caught in it as you try to damage him. As soon as you see him fly straight up, run away and Quick Step out of the blast radius.

You will get very few good chances to deal out damage. Also, you will want to save as much of your Innocent Devil's life as possible for the last fight. Be patient and capitalize on the small opportunities you get. There is one really cheese way to defeat him. If you have the Spiked Shield, you will need to get in close and hit him. Once you do, attack as fast as you can, and continue to follow him. This will force him to block the attack while your I.D. attacks from the back.

This is the final showdown, so hold nothing back! Not only does his attacks do a lot of damage but yours do very little. While it may seem obvious, the important thing is to do as much damage as quickly as possible! You could easily burn through all your healing items and never defeat this monster, if you don't use your Innocent Devils to help deal out damage. Don't worry if you lose any of them ... just be sure to send them back when it flies in the background and does its area attacks. Also, be careful of its red vapors after it attacks ... this "mist" can still damage you.

The fight begins with the huge monster charging right at you. Dodge this initial strike, and go to work. The obvious time to attack is when it crosses its arms and laughs at you.

From this close position it will take several swings at you. The single arm punch is easy to dodge to the opposite side. After you escape this move, get back in to do a sort combo. Be sure to keep these combos short, because it doesn't stand still for long.

Its swipe attacks are a lot tougher to avoid, because they cover so much ground. Try to Quick Step into the move, so you will go in the opposite direction of the attack. Once again, get in close and inflict some damage.

If you see it raise both arms in over its head, get right in front of it and jump straight up to do an air combo as its arm come crashing down. You still have to be careful of the red vapor trails that it leaves, but you need every chance you can get to do damage.

After taking enough abuse, it will fly into the background. Send your I.D. back so it does not suffer in the wake of this attack. There are several types that he can use from this distance. The first is a blue beam it will project as it spins around the platform. Quick Step through this in the opposite direction it is moving.

Another type of long-range attack is a swarm of homing green arrows. Run left and run using Quick Step to avoid the shots just as they are about to hit you.

The final long-distance attack it has is a blue explosion that sends out a shock wave. Jump over this attack or attempt to step through it.

Sometimes it will jump behind you, so be sure to lock on and center the camera to avoid it getting a cheap shot. Keep pounding away at it, and use any of your I.D.s abilities, like the Light attack from the Mage Type I.D. to drop its life bar until it is defeated once and for all.

100% COMPLETION

While it is not necessary to complete each level 100 percent, there is always that nagging feeling of what was missed and what else is there to see. This section does not cover every aspect of the game; it is meant to focus on the areas that were not originally accessible in the walkthrough as well as optional sections. If you are having trouble finishing all the levels completely, your answer lies in this section. Many of the "hidden" areas of the game are only available after Dracula's Castle appears and drains the water out of many rooms. Also, this section assumes you have the correct abilities of the various Innocent Devils to reach several sections. Check out the I.D. section in the beginning of the guide to find the correct evolution series for each of these required abilities. Note that you do not obtain any special item for clearing the game 100 percent, but it is extremely satisfying!

CENTRAL FOREST

Travel all the way up north to area 5 of the Central Forest. Use the path to the north that leads to the Blood Skeletons that you were powerless to destroy earlier. Summon your Magic Type I.D. with the Purify ability, and let him destroy these regenerating monsters. Enter the guarded room to claim a HP Max Up.

Go back down to area 5, and continue to the southern end of this region. With the water level lowered, the bridge will span a dried-up plain. Jump down into the new pit, collect the High Potion and enter the doorway into a new looping section.

There are a few meager Thieves in this looping section, but ignore them and take the left path.

Enter the first room on the right to receive an XS Potion... your second on this level alone!

Go back out, and continue north to the next room on the right that contains a Dark Crystal.

Follow the path as it loops around to the east, and enter the doorway on the left. Inside, you will find a Dragon Scale and a Pachinko Chair. Finish this loop by heading south and proceed to the Western Forest

WESTERN FOREST

Journey to area 6, and go west to take the left part of the loop. You will recall that at the top of the steps on the left was where you acquired the Boiling Ring. Now that you have the Glide ability, fly across the long gap to collect a HP Max Up.

GARIBALDI TEMPLE

- Magic Circle ability.

WESTERN TEMPLE

In the Western Temple is a room off to the west. Near the bottom of the rear wall is a broken section that you can slide under with the Magic Circle ability.

Maneuver under this section to access a new hallway. Enter the doorway on your right. This room is filled with Armor Knights, Thieves and Dead Barons, but by now, they are half your level. When the room is free of monsters, have a seat in the Coffee Cup Chair.

Continue on your previous course south, and enter the last room with an ornate staircase. Be sure to grab the Ether in the back of the room, and head down into the hidden depths.

BASEMENT

Fight your way through the spiraling, musty catacombs. When you find the Blood Skeletons, just run past them, unless you are lucky enough to have the Magic Type-ability Purify. Without this spell, you can never defeat these level 75 undead.

Use the Save Room on the left ... you'll need it! The hallways are filled with Evil Cores, and this is one of the best areas in the entire game to level up your Innocent Devils. The Evil Cores are not tough, and they drop lots of Evo Crystals. Plus, you have a Save Room right next to them. Attack with good ranged weapons to avoid their staggering touch, and you should be on your way to maxing your I.D.s.

When you're done leveling up your I.D.s, stock up on Potions, and enter the last room. Something horrible is locked away in these depths; this could be the toughest fight of the entire game.

This is a classic Boss from previous Castlevania games who fans of the series will get a kick out of. The Boss itself is not that tough. In fact, this Boss doesn't attack you at all! The trouble is the walking corpses that roam this area; they're a real pain. As long as you hit them first, they will go down pretty easy, but if they touch you and explode, it takes a huge chunk of your life bar.

Pick a flying I.D., and try to lock on the Boss while you work your way up the ramp. Do not stop to fight the corpses, or you will never defeat this thing. Continue running until you are high enough that you can hit the Boss from the ledge. After a few hits, a large chunk of the outer husk will fall off.

You will only be able to chip away at one section for each area of the spiraling ledge. Jump into the center, and attack to land back on the bottom level. Climb back up the ramp to a lower height this time, and chip away another segment.

Repeat this pattern until all that is left is the exposed core. This is your chance to steal from this Boss. Climb back up one last time, and deliver the final blow to the nucleolus to send it crashing to the ground below. This grand act does not finish the Boss; however, there is another form to contend with!

If you thought Legion was easy, this is the reason. This Boss can be tougher to tackle than the final Boss. The premature birth of this creature has made it cranky, and it is very tough. Hopefully you have the Void and Boiling Ring to help protect you from its attacks.

There are several attacks to look out for from this tall, white figure. One of the most deadly is when it stretches out to grab you. This attack will pull you in and do a ton of damage. Quick Step this attack when you see its short but obvious wind up.

Another one of its ranged attacks consists of throwing corpses at you. They can be tough to dodge, but try to get in close enough to set up for a combo after the bodies hit the floor.

Obviously, you will need to get in close to do some damage, and this is where the fight gets frustrating. The Boss doesn't trade blows with you. Instead, it "melts" into the ground and emerges from a lava pool that can damage you. This can make it tough to stay in contact with the Boss, but you must be persistent.

One other attack you must be careful of when you get close is its purple diagonal beam. The Boss sucking in energy and then expelling it as it spins precedes this attack. Quick Step through this attack.

The final attack of this first phase is a charging dash move. You will see the Boss cross its arms, and then it will sprint toward you. Dodge this attack, and use its recovery time to throw out a combo.

Use the short time after its attack to dish out a short combo. When you see it fall over, attack it while it feasts on a corpse. After it is done feeding, it will get huge! You can attack its feet when it is not walking or trying to stomp you, but you won't be able to do very many hits in a row.

Attack its feet and use all the powers of your I.D. Eventually it will reduce in size, and you can continue your previous assault. This thing is really tough, so don't hold back and manually use up the attacks of your I.D.s to dish out damage.

INTERIOR FIRST FLOOR

From the Warp Room, go east into the area where you fought the Boss. Now that the water is gone, the surrounding area where you fought the Boss is accessible. Drop down and circle around to find a chest with an Angel Halo. On the opposite side, jump on the large ledges and head back out of the Boss door going west beyond the Warp Room.

Completing the next part is a bit of work, no matter which way you go. You will need to trek through several floors to reach the area where you found the Potion. Go back up to the second floor, and follow the path leading up to the third floor. Head back downstairs past the statue that raised the staircase. Follow the path until you get to the room with a large pillar in the center. From here take the exit to the west.

Descend the long staircase, and continue on your way back to the first floor. You are almost there! Make a right turn, and enter the room that is now devoid of water. Jump down the large steps, and enter this new section.

There are some tough Fishmen to contend with, but they cannot stand in your way to complete this level.

After a few more fights, you will have to remove the White Dragons on the walls to lower the barriers. No problem. When they are defeated, go out the door to the west (right), and in the next room, you will find an Aquamarine and the Sofa. Go back the other way, and in this room, you will find a chest that contains Dark Matter.

SOUTHERN FOREST

It may have been possible for you to access several of the hidden areas, depending on which way you leveled up your Battle Type I.D. Here is a quick run down of the two key areas in this region:

From area 6, go south where the trail appears to end at a section of black charred-looking ground. Use the Battle I.D.'s Hip Press ability to smash through to a hidden section below.

There are two paths to take, and each one ends in a room with an item. Inside the first room will be a Rattan Chair you can sit in it for fun and a Carbon Steel that is great for making weapons and armor.

On the opposite side, you will have to contend with the same monsters. This room will contain an Ether. Travel to area 7, and go south west to a long ramp with several statues, arranged like bowling pins, at the bottom. You will need Iytei with the Shoulder Ride ability to break through these pins. Hop on his back, and race down the hill to build up speed. When you hit the statues, they will shatter, and you can enter the room.

Battle through the monsters, and enter the door on the left. Inside are the Woodman's Chair and the Rare Ring that will increase monster drops.

Go back out into the hallway, and continue south fighting more Great Armor and Ogres. The last room on this route holds a Dragon Scale.

WESTERN FOREST

To the southwest of area 2 was an open place that was filled with water. Now that it is gone, you can fully explore this section to find the Western Toilet, which is a very elegant "chair" and a chest that contains Devil's Vein.

NORTHERN RUINS

There are two parts in this region that require special abilities. To the east of the Warp Room is a vine-covered door. Use a fire attack from your Mage or Bird type I.D. to burn through the living barricade. A door will be revealed behind the trellis, and you can now enter the eastern section of this region.

The halls are filled with more Great Armors. At the split in the road, take the right fork to enter a room with a Leather Chair and Frenzy of Wind.

Take the other path that leads to a room with several goodies. In here, you will find a chest with Damascus Steel, an HP Max Up and a Hilarious Chair.

Return back to the first room of the Northern Ruins, and take the western exit this time. The next corridor is loaded with White Dragons. Halfway through the hallway is a small button on the top of the wall. If you have a Fairy with the Press It and See ability, it will automatically press the button, revealing a new area to the north.

These halls are filled with Spirits that are great for leveling your I.D. Take the path to the right, and enter a room that will contain the Director's Chair and the Megingelos. When this magical band is equipped, the lower you are on HP, the more damage you will do.

Head back out to the hallway, and take the first exit on the right. The top part of this road will lead to a doorway on your right with a room that contains the Comedian's Chair and Orichalcum. This metal is very tough to get, so be sure to use it wisely when making items.

Go back out and head west to the last room. What, no chair! I guess you will have to settle for an XS Potion. As you can tell, this is probably the best detour of the game!

ABOUT DEVIL SHARDS

These small egg-like shards are your means to forging more Innocent Devils. After about 20 minutes of continual use an I.D. may drop a shard for you. The really incredible thing about Devil Shards is not only that you can go to Julia's shop and forge a new I.D., but it will get a 10% bonus of the stats of its parent!

BATTLING THE BEASTS

There are approximately 80 types of monsters in this game and that makes for a huge variety of attacks and items. Within this section is all the info you will need to figure how to fight these creatures based on their weakness, tolerance, and hit points. Be sure to equip the correct ring to guard against any of the 11 different damage types. At the same time, check their stats to exploit their weaknesses through the use of your Innocent Devils.

COLLECTING MATERIALS

Monsters are your main source for materials, so get in the habit of stealing from them as often as you can. Also, you should note that there are two drop item slots. The first is their common drop that you will see most often. The second slot, however, is a very rare find that may only surface 1 in a 100 times you kill a monster. To successfully make many of the coolest and most powerful pieces of equipment, use this appendix to determine which monster drops what you will need. The materials section is an awesome reference to find out what you need to hunt in order to collect that rare material.

THE TOWER OF ETERNITY

LOCATION: THE FOREST OF JIGRAMUNT

This is a 50-level tower, and once you start, there is no turning back. You can tackle this on your first visit to the Forest but it will be quite a handful at that point. If you are up for the challenge, be sure you are fully stocked on healing items, and rotate your Innocent Devils to level them up. The only thing in your favor is that every five floors you will receive a Potion. At the top of this tower is the Kit Bag that will allow you to equip an extra accessory. This prize makes it worth fighting for early on. The Tower of Eternity is pretty tough at a low level, but the experience and rewards are worth it! Here is a list of what awaits you.

THE TOWER OF EVERMORE

LOCATION: GARIBALDI TEMPLE - (LONG GLIDE FROM TOWER OF ETERNITY)

From the top of The Tower of Eternity you can gain access to another more difficult place: the Tower of Evermore. To get there, you will need the Long Glide ability of your Bird Type I.D. Face the moon in the background so that it is directly in front of you and jump off the ledge, gliding all the way to this new tower. You will be able to get here on your first visit to the Forest, but you have no chance of making it through. This is the single most challenging aspect of the game, so don't even try this tower until you and your I.D.s are around level 50! In this tower you must fight your way down to the first floor where you can break the wall and exit to Garibaldi Temple. Take a look at what awaits you in this 50 room battle royal. Note the level 75 monsters. Ouch! There are too many possible scenarios that you could face but here are a few tips to help you make it through. The rewards aren't as great as you may think. You can acquire Vampire's Blood near the very bottom - this is useful for making a powerful item.

TIPS: THE TOWER OF EVERMORE

- Stock up on Potions and the Death Doll. Be sure to equip the Death Doll to prevent an unforeseen demise one of the bottom levels.

- It sounds petty but smash every candle! This can make literally be difference between life and death. Remember that they randomly hold Potions and meat, which can save your life.

- Tag team tough enemies with your I.D. If you are both attacking one tough enemy, like a level 75 Red Ogre, it will die sooner and be less of a threat. Also, multiple attacks can interrupt many monsters from launching their own assault.

- Collect the Extra I.D. Pocket and make sure you are full of powerful Innocent Devils. This item will allow you to carry one more I.D. and that could be all you need.

- Don't give up on your favorite I.D. if it "dies". If you have a very powerful I.D. that falls in battle use an "easy room" for you to bring it back to life. Having the right I.D. can make all the difference.

THE CHAIRS

Throughout your journey there are 24 chairs where you can take a seat and relax. The chairs don't "do" anything except give you a good laugh. Once you have found a chair it will appear in the Chair Room in Cordova Town. In order to sit in all the chairs you have to beat the game. Finishing the game is not a requirement, but you can only sit in Dracula's Throne during the Boss fight at the end of your quest. Only then will you have sat in every chair, and it is then that the Complete Chair will appear. Here's a list of all of the chairs and the funny descriptions you will obtain upon taking a seat...

AND WHEN IT'S OVER...

CRAZY MODE

After beating the game enter @CRAZY as the name for a new game and you can play the game at a really high difficulty setting. More monsters plus less damage for each of your attacks equals FUN!

TREVOR MODE

This mode is also opened once the game is won. Simply enter @TREVOR as the name for a new game to play as the Belmont who defeated Dracula years ago. This character is a blast to use and he plays very similarly to the character in the previous Castlevania game, Lament of Innocence.

BOSS RUSH MODE

When the game is over and you have essentially defeated all the bosses, you will be able to use the cleared data file to enter Boss Rush Mode. Simply enter a Warp Room and prepare to take on each Boss in succession. Several Potions will be available after each fight but your Innocent Devils won't get to recharge that often.

MOEBIUS BROOCH

If you are tough enough to beat Crazy Mode this item will be available in the shop. When equipped this will allow you (Trevor) to consume no hearts when using any sub-weapon.

LAMENT SAVE DATA = MOAI

If you have a memory card in slot one with previous save data from Lament of Innocence this item, that looks like a head from Easter Island, will be located in the first stage - Abandoned Castle. From your starting position go north to head outside and in a large clearing you will find this magical healing item.

TREVOR BELMONT

Trevor is a true Belmont and that means he uses the old school weapons such as whips. Throughout his quest he will be able to gain several other types of whips, but unlike Hector he is limited to this one weapon. Still, Trevor also has the original Sub-weapon system at his disposal that will make up for all the fancy armor and new fangled weapons kids love these days. In his plus column, he has a lot more basic attacks than Hector and his diversity of combos is vastly superior.

GAME CHANGES

The game's levels are essentially the same but without many of the mechanics. There are no Innocent Devils since you are no longer a devil forgemaster. Also, he can only use whips so there is no material combining. This means monsters drop hearts, meat, or the rare Rosario. Lastly, he does not have any EXP meter so he will always be at the same level. Because of all these changes Trevor will pick up ATK, DEF and HP power-ups in many of the same locations

Hector would find an item. The good thing about this fact is that you don't have to worry about killing monsters to gain EXP to boost your stats. In fact, playing through the game with Trevor is a lot faster since you can avoid many of the monsters and you don't have to mess around with materials. For those who like a straightforward no frills approach, Trevor is your man.

TREVOR'S BASICS

ATTACK BASICS

Pressing the Square button will cause Trevor to attack with his whip. Pressing Square again during this attack motion produces a continuous attack.

ATTACK BRANCHING

Similar to Hector, Trevor can branch his attacks by using the Square and Circle buttons. Unlike Hector, however, the Circle button does not end the chain; further branching is possible. Therefore the configuration of Trevor's attacks is somewhat more complicated than Hector's. (The feel is similar to 'Lament of Innocence').

LIFT ATTACK

Pressing the Square button while holding down R1 will produce a Lift Attack that launches the enemy up into the air. This attack can be performed at any time while Trevor is on the ground. However, there are some enemies that cannot be launched.

SOMERSAULT KICK

By pressing the X button immediately after the Square button, or pressing Square and X simultaneously, Trevor will jump up and perform a kick. Enemies on the ground that get hit by this attack will be launched into the air.

TREVOR'S COMBOS

COMBO STRUCTURE

Pressing the Square button will cause Trevor to attack with his whip. Pressing Square again during this attack motion produces a continuous attack.

A1 - Whip Attack 1

A quick whip attack with a snap.

A2 - Whip Attack 2

Another quick snap attack following Whip Attack 1.

A3 - Whip Attack 3

Trevor swings down his whip to attack the enemy.

A3 - Whip Attack 4

Trevor spins at high speed, striking out at his enemies.

B2 - Low to High 4

Following a low kick, Trevor spins around and performs a high kick.

B3 - Final Rush

After numerous kicks, the enemy is knocked backwards with a heel drop.

C1 - Spiral Charge

Trevor advances swiftly and knocks the enemy back.

C2 - Rising Shot

Trevor jumps up and launches the enemy with his whip.

C3 - Spinning Blast

Trevor dives down from the sky, blasting away the enemies around him with a shockwave.

TREVOR'S SUB-WEAPONS

SUB-WEAPONS

The traditional weapon of a Belmont, these Sub-Weapons are unique attacks that consume hearts when used. There are two types of attacks, a Normal version that is activated by pressing Triangle and a Special version that is performed by pressing R2 + Triangle. Each type of attack has its advantages such as the speed of the Knives, the undead cleansing of Holy Water, and the boomerang action of the Cross. Switch between these weapons by using the D-Pad.
